Leaves Courtroom After Plea to Have Trial Postponed Is Refused

Attorney Daniel H. Coakley abruptly withdrew from the Supreme Judicial Court today and announced to Justice Charles F. Jenney that he would offer no defence in the disbarment proceedings brought against him by the Boston Bar Association.

As a result of this dramatic action, the matter of his disbarment was taken under advisement by Justice Jenney on a prima facie case offered by counsel for the Bar Association, involving a typewritten transcript of the Stearns divorce charges in which M. Coakley and former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County were jointly accused.

The court will render its finding later.

What threatened to be a sensational trial collapsed with the retirement of Coakley from the court room after Justice Jenney had denied Mr. Coakley's motion to postpone the trial until after the Legislature had acted upon a bill now pending authorizing the transfer of disbarment cases from the Supreme to the Superior Court.

LASTED THIRTY MINUTES.

Today's proceedings lasted thirty minutes. Court adjourned to consider a date for the disbarment proceedings against former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Suffolk County, who is expected to take the same course that Mr. Coakley did today, in view of Mr. Pelletier's failure to offer any defence at his trial before the Supreme Court in January.

The figure of "Big Bill" William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex County, loomed as a nemesis of Coakley in the background of the State's case today at the opening of court.

If Mr. Coakley had fought the charges, Mr. Corcoran would have figured as the star witness for the prosecution and would have testified under oath concerning the revelations made in a lengthy confession to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

It was learned after court adjourned that the Attorney-General's department would not have depended solely on Mr. Corcoran's confession if the Coakley trial had proceeded.

CHAUFFEUR'S EXPOSE.

Other important witnesses were in court today ready to take the stand as Mr. Coakley's accusers.

Among them was the former chauffeur of Phyllis Allen, one of the alleged girl members of the Boston blackmail ring, who was ready to testify concerning various operations on the part of the Allen woman while he drove her car.

The chauffeur was to have made a full expose of the Munroe case.

Another important State witness today was to have been Betty

ROMANCE REVEALED IN RAID

A raid on an Astor street, Back Bay, apartment, came near to shattering a romance and revealed some of the details of a gay party, according to testimony given in the Roxbury District Court before Judge Ahern today.

Three young girls and seven men were arrested in the raid by the Back Bay police following complaints of hilarious times at an apartment on Astor street.

Two of the girls were so young the police called up their parents and sent them home to be dealt with.

The other was Miss Cecil Sassaman, twenty-one years old, who told Judge Ahern of a disappointed romance.

She came from Allentown, Pa.,

BROOKLINE MANAGER PLEADS BANKRUPTCY

Frederick C. Hitchcock of Brookline, describing himself as a manager, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal Court today. His liabilities are $104,712 and assets $43,390. The secured claims total $33,670 and the unsecured $67,017.

ARRESTED GIRL TAKES POISON

Miss Dorothy McDermott, twenty-eight years old, of No. 108 H street, South Boston, attempted to kill herself with iodine today when taken to the Fields Corner police station on a warrant charging her with assault and battery.

At the City Hospital it was said the woman had not taken enough of the poison to do more than make her seriously ill, and that her life was in no danger.

The arrest of the young woman and her subsequent draining of the iodine vial is the latest development in a long standing feud with the Misses Margaret J. and Susan McGowan of Marie street, Dorchester, which has dragged through the courts and led to what is alleged to have been an assault by Miss McDermott upon the brother of the Misses McGowan.

According to police, the girl assaulted the young man when he attempted to discourage an intimate friendship which had existed between them.

A summons was issued for Miss McDermott to appear in Dorchester Court. She failed to appear when the case was called and was defaulted. A warrant was then issued for her arrest.

It is understood the McGowan sisters objected to their brother marrying Miss McDermott.

SISTERS ACCUSED GIRL.

In March the Misses McGowan filed a bill in equity in Superior Court, asking that an injunction be issued against Miss McDermott, restraining her from "further molesting them and from interfering in their business and with their right to the peaceful enjoyment of their home."

According to the testimony given at that time, Miss McDermott had been in the habit of calling up the two sisters "at unreasonable and unseemly" hours of the night, besides ringing their doorbell and that of other tenants in their apartment.

Miss McDermott also was charged with having "made life miserable" for the sisters by creating a disturbance by means of "loud, vile, abusive and obscene language," and otherwise annoying them.

Escaped Convict Is Convicted in 10 Minutes

Henry Berwin, who, last December, escaped from prison at Charlestown in a drygoods box and was captured in the cellar of an empty house in Newton the same evening, was today sentenced to serve from 2½ to 5 years at the expiration of a sentence now being served from 7 to 9 years for breaking and entering.

Berwin, addressing the jury, charged he could not be convicted of any crime, that he merely committed a breach of trust.

A jury thought otherwise. Trial lasted ten minutes.

RESTAURANT HELP IN HAVERHILL STRIKE

Haverhill, April 17.—A strike was called in fifteen restaurants in this city today by the Cooks and Waiters' Union when the restaurant proprietors refused to sign new agreements. Recognition of the union is the issue in the controversy. About 100 employes were called out. Picketing was begun this afternoon. Six restaurants and all the lunch carts but one have signed new agreements.

CHILDREN ROLL EGGS ON WHITE HOUSE LAWN

Washington, April 17.—Threats of rain did not deter several thousand Washington children from flocking to the White House grounds for the Eastern Monday egg rolling. The south lawn was thrown open by order of President Harding and at 9 o'clock, when the gates were opened, hundreds of little tots poured through and began the sport which only children living in the capital may enjoy.

FORCED TO STEAL, SAYS PRISONER TO JUDGE

Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court today sentenced Vincent H. Power of Howard street to a month in the house of correction, following the prisoner's confession to the theft of a quantity of gloves and stocks from a Summer street department store. The prisoner told the court he had been out of work for three months and had been forced to steal to get food.

OFFICER TOLD TO USE GUN

Crowley Warns Officer Beaten in Fist Fight With Two Men

Revelation in Municipal Court today that Patrolman Coleman McGowan, former prize fighter, suffered a terrific beating at the hands of two North End men while refusing to draw his gun or club, prompted Superintendent Crowley to warn him that if ever again under similar circumstances e refused to make use of weapons e would be dismissed from te force.

Patrolman McGowan was so badly beaten he was sent to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Following his reprimand he announced to reporters that he had been approached by North End politicians asking him to "lay off" and "go easy" with his assailants when they come up for trial.

Today they were arraigned, charged with assault.

WEAPONS ARE TOOLS.

They gave their names as Joseph A. Solari of Endicott street, North End, and James F. McGonagle, a neighbor.

"Your gun and club are your working tools just as a saw and hammer are a carpenter's," said Superintendent Crowley. "You are supposed to use them if necessity arises. Hereafter see that you do so."

RETURNS FIRE OF REBELS

Captures One of Party of Irish Mutineers That Rushed His Automobile

Dublin, April 17.—Michael Collins, head of the Free State government, today related his story of how he was attacked when returning from Naas, where he spoke yesterday.

"Twelve or fifteen men dashed from the mutineers' headquarters just as I arrived at the hotel," he said. "I had just alighted from the car when shots were fired in the direction of the car. I drew my revolver and fired. I believe I wounded one man, whom I captured.

"He fired three shots within two yards of me and then turned and ran. I chased him and captured him. I believe it was an attempt to kidnap me."

Free State troops patrolled Dublin streets today in armored cars, fearing an outbreak.

In his speech at Naas, Sligo, Collins charged the opponents of the Free State government with setting barriers against the onward march of the nation. He declared that De Valera had adopted "methods of anarchy" because the people of Ireland were not willing to allow him to decide the treaty question for them.

Arthur Griffith's speech at Sligo in defiance of the mutineers was looked upon as a Free State victory and a strengthening of the position of the Republican troops attacked the Beggars Bush Barracks in the early morning, but no casualties were reported. An army transport also attacked the quarters of the civic guard at Ballsbridge.

In Donegal, John Collins, an ex-soldier, was taken from his home, placed against a wall and shot. He may recover.

Eamon De Valera, insurgent leader, continues to urge his followers forward.

"If you want a united Ireland, go on and attain that end," he exhorts. "The turmoil will continue until independence is attained."

Dublin, April 17.—Free State troops made several attacks during the night on the Four Courts building, now held by mutinous members of the Irish Republican army. Chief of Staff Lymph of the insurgent troops surrendered to the Free Staters.

There was considerable firing in Sackville street, rebels holding up pedestrians and firing haphazardly.

3-Hour Battle in Streets of Dublin

Dublin, April 17.—Easter Sunday was a day of terror here. For three hours in the early morning Free State troops in command of Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence, engaged in a fierce cannonade with armed insurgents, who made a desperate attempt to take Mountjoy prison by storm.

Bomb Thrown in Belfast Church Yard

Belfast, April 17 (By the Associated Press)—A bomb was thrown into the yard of St. Matthew's chapel. No one was injured.

At Clough, County Antrim, an unidentified man, who had taken refuge in the school building from pursuit by a police patrol, was shot and killed by his pursuers.

ONE SHOT, 28 JAILED IN NEW YORK BATTLES

New York, April 17.—One man was shot and four others captured in a police chase after an automobile carrying $5,000 worth of stolen suits and cloaks on West Fifty-third street early today. Twenty-four others were behind the bars as a result of a series of battles and chases early today and yesterday in the newly inaugurated "Midnight Patrol" to wipe crime from New York's streets. The five occupants of the automobile failed to stop when ordered. Detective Cordes, leaping to the running board, shot the driver, who was wounded in the shoulder.

12 ESCAPE AS TRAIN FALLS INTO FLOOD

By Associated Press.

Hartford, Ct., April 17.—A work train of eight cars and locomotive toppled over into the Connecticut River flood area today when about 1,500 feet of track collapsed at the upper end of the New Haven Railroad yards north of this city. No one was hurt, although there were a dozen men aboard.

The accident was due to the undermining of the spur track by the flood.

CURLEY IS "HAVING TIME OF HIS LIFE"

Mayor James M. Curley walloped Dame Rumor today. Folks had it Hizzoner was desperately ill and out of town. The Mayor is out of town, but "having the time of my life," he wrote Mrs. Curley in a letter received today. Hizzoner is somewhere in the Adirondacks and will return, he wrote, "the latter part of the week." His brother, John J. Curley, city treasurer, is laid up with a cold.

Senate Can't Query Boris Bakhmeteff, Hughes Declares

Washington, April 17.—The State Department, under Secretary Hughes, has decided Boris Bakhmeteff is still the accredited ambassador of Russia, and, as such, is protected by a cloak of diplomatic immunity which places him outside the jurisdiction of any Senatorial investigation committee, it was announced at the State Department today.

Mr. Bakhmeteff, accredited envoy of the Kerensky government which died five years ago, was sought by Senator Borah to testify against General Gregory Semenoff of anti-Bolshevik fame.

SUPREME COURT FINDS AGAINST UNITED SHOE

Washington, April 17.—The government today won in the Supreme Court in the case brought by the United Shoe Machinery Corporation and others to have set aside the restraining order prohibiting them from using certain lease clauses in their contracts for the rental of patented machinery.

The Supreme Court affirmed the decree of the United States District Court at St. Louis, which enjoined the corporation, under the Clayton act.

The lower Federal Court prohibited the corporation from compelling, by lease agreements, the exclusive use of its machines, and from enforcing an alternative royalty clause, found to be prohibitive, upon all footwear manufactured in factories where machines of competitors were also used.

It also held invalid the agreement by which the corporation required those using its machines to purchase supplies of it.

Justice McKenna dissented but did not express his views. Justice Brandeis took no part in the consideration of the case.

STEARNS CASE HELPED TO OUST TUFTS

The Stearns divorce case, on the strength of which will depend the future career of Daniel H. Coakley as a lawyer, played a prominent part at the trial of former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts. Attorney Robert G. Dodge said that the evidence in this case alone was sufficien for disbarment.

The evidence at the Tufts trial showed that Mrs. Helen W. Stearns of Waltham had consulted former District Attorney Tufts in Cambridge, in May, 1917, seking a divorce from Captain Charles Ephraim Stearns, a Harvard graduate, lawyer and son of the late Colonel Stearns of Waltham.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen alleged, and the Supreme Court sustained the charge, that Mr. Tufts conspired with others to send an attractive young woman to a hotel at Old Point Comfort, Virginia, in order to snare and compromise Captain Stearns, who was serving in the quartermaster's corps in a nearby garrison.

Attorney Coakley was charged with being a co-conspirator with Mr. Tufts in the procurement of the young woman who shadowed Captain Stearns, and who followed him to Cambridge.

This young woman was known as "Miss Pennington."

Attorney Coakley, in his testimony at the Tufts trial, claimed that "Miss Pennington" was none other than a Miss Penn of Waltham, who had formerly worked for Captain Stearns as stenographer.

Special Attorney-General William Flaherty punctured the Tufts defense in the Stearns divorce case by offering documentary evidence that "Miss Pennington" was a young woman entirely apart from Miss Penn of Waltham, and further showed records where Miss Pennington had occupied an apartment in Cambridge before she and Captain Stearns were trapped in a Cambridge apartment during Harvard Class Day exercises.

Attorney Flaherty also showed that Daniel H. Sugrue, Mr. Coakley's office manager, had been in communication with "Miss Pennington" and had vouched for her at a garage.

RUMOR OF BRIBE HALTS HEARING

A hearing before the Board of Street Commissioners on the petition of Mrs. Elizabeth G. McIntyre to enlarge a seven-car garage at No. 246 Boston street, Dorchester, to accommodate 35 automobiles, came to an abrupt ending today when mention was made of rumors that a previous board of commissioners had been bribed by Mrs. McIntyre to grant her a permit for the present garage.

Mrs. McInyre's petition was bitterly opposed by 300 parishioners of St. Margaret's Church in Columbia road, Dorchester, led by the pastor, Rev. William A. Ryan.

It was on the opposition generated in Dorchester that brought forth the mention of graft.

"To such an extreme has this opposition to my mother's plans gone," said David McIntyre, "there has been talk in Dorchester of previous street boards having been recompensed for having granted her the petition last Fall for the original seven-car garage against strong opposition."

Questioned by Chairman John H. Dunn, McIntyre said he merely repeated gossip.

The hearing was then adjourned, with the matter taken under advisement.

Opposition to the garage was made on the ground that it would be a menace to school children.

FIRM STAGING OWN HOME BEAUTIFUL SHOW

The Summerfield Company No. 727 Washington street, has staged an independent House Beautiful Show in their own building for the exhibition of their special "home beautiful" feature, "The 1923 Love-Nest." This four-room honeymooning outfit has been the talk of the furniture world each season since the feature was established. It is a miniature apartment of four rooms and arranged so that engaged couples or anyone contemplating housekeeping can get a very good idea as to how such a home may be furnished at a very modest price. This four-room "love-nest" may be added to or reduced according to ones taste or income. ## COAKLEY CALLS HIS HEARING AN AUTOPSY

Attorney Daniel H. Coakley's motion requesting his hearing be delayed until after the Legislature had acted upon a bill to authorize the transfer of disbarment hearings to the Superior Court, which he read today to Justice Charles F. Jenney of the Supreme Court which concluded with the words:

"This is not a hearing which I am facing here; it is an autopsy."

It contained rapier thrusts at the bench, charges that it could not act impartially and requesting a "day in court" ("a fair trial") which, he said, would exonerate him of charges he said were brought against him by Godfrey L. Cabot.

"Before an impartial tribunal," he said, "I can demonstrate the falsity of every charge against me."

Mr. Coakley said in his petition:

"This motion is an unusual one. The circumstances which prompt it are unusual. In presenting reasons why it should be granted it is necessary to preface them with a brief summary of what has preceded it.

ASKED JURY TRIAL.

"Before Mr. Justice DeCourcy some months ago I made a motion to transfer this case from this court to the Superior Court. I then represented to him that in the opinion of the full court in Attorney-General v. Tufts, where I was a witness, though not a party, and, therefore, with no right to be heard, references were made to me which necessarily made it imposible for me to get an impartial hearing from any justice of this court.

"I represented to him that this case could not be heard even by a justice who had not sat in the Tufts trial. I said to Mr. Justice DeCourcy that though he had not participated in that trial, it was not humanly possible for him to give me an impartial hearing, being bound by the opinion of his associates.

"The argument seemed to impress Mr. Justice DeCourcy, whose decision denying my motion was made to rest solely upon his lack of power under the law to allow it.

"The court having found itself powerless to assure me an impartial hearing by sending me to another court, I moved that the case be tried by a jury.

Precedent prevailed. The motion was denied.

ASKS POSTPONEMENT.

"Since that time a bill has been introduced in the Legislature which if enacted would transfer to the Superior Court the trial of petitions of this nature.

"I ask Your Honor to postpone this case in the hope that the Legislature may so act as to make it possible for me to have an impartial trial.

"I have been pictured by the sensational press in the most unrelenting and wicked way. Irresponsible and lying stories have been published without limit. I have been obliged to sit in court and listen to perjured lips utter the most atrocious lies concerning me, with no opportunity to reply. I know that before an impartial tribunal I can demonstrate the falsity of every charge against me.

WANTS "DAY IN COURT."

"I want my day in court before such a tribunal. I ought to know the meaning of 'a day in court.' For twenty-five years I have been a member of the bar, guiding some 5,000 clients to their day in court.

"I want an opportunity to set against the slanderous press, against the perjured testimony of the underworld, the fact that no reprimand from a judge ever came to me; that no suggestion of false or unfair dealing even in the heat of conflict was ever made by the great lawyers.

"I want an opportunity to show that no complaint was ever made by any one of the 5,000 clients. I want an opportunity to show that these proceedings were brought at the instance of Godfrey L. Cabot, never a client of mine, and to show that until I went before the Bar Association on his complaint no charges, however trivial, had ever been lodged against me.

PREDICTS EXONERATION.

"An impartial tribunal hearing these charges and their refutation will exonerate me.

"You sat in both the district attorney trials. You heard all the testimony. You concurred in both opinions. In certain cases, which I won't take the time of Your Honor to specify, the former district attorney was found to have conspired with me and was removed from office.

"Now, I'll place Your Honor at the very pinnacle of human integrity with ability surpassed by no man who ever set on any bench, and then I will say that you cannot give me the impartial trial I am entitled to have. Assume that the evidence which I could present here demonstrates that I am guiltless in those cases to which I have referred; that I present such evidence that if Your Honor were impartial, in the sense in which the law speaks, Your Honor's decision would be rendered immediately in my favor.

CLAIMS HE IS PREJUDGED.

"'Guilty of conspiracy with Coakley,' said Your Honor in the opinion given against Pelletier. Finding me guiltless in those cases necessarily implies error in the decision against Pelletier. There can be no conspiracy by one.

"Sat there ever in any court anywhere a judge so free from human fallibility that he could render such a decision? Was there ever a judge anywhere whose previous decision would not bias his mind in deciding such an issue?

"I say, No!

"Before this court I am prejudged; I can have no day in court. It is not a hearing that is offered me today; it is an autopsy.

"I ask Your Honor to grant my motion."

"LIGHTED LAMP" HEAD FOUND NOT GUILTY

MRS. NATALIE WOODWARD

With Ambrose D. Gring, Mrs. Woodward was charged with maintaining a nuisance in The Lighted Lamp tea room, Myrtle street, West End. The case was appealed to the Suffolk Superior Court. Counsel for the defendants charged a police "frame-up." That allegation brought a sharp rebuke from the bench.

COAKLEY WITHDRAWS FROM DISBARMENT TRIAL

Stevens, who also had an interesting story to tell.

In denying the motion Justice Jenney declared that he did so without prejudice to the defendant.

"It is one of the most disagreeable tasks of my judicial life," said Justice Jenney, "to be called to sit in this case."

In his motion asking delay Mr. Coakley declared that "it is not a hearing that I am now facing, but an autopsy."

After he left the court with Attorney W. Minot Hurd of his office force, Mr. Coakley returned to the court to authorize the introduction of the transcription of the Stearns divorce case, which the attorney for the Bar Association, Robert G. Dodge, had announced would be the opening case of the prosecution.

Clerk John F. Cronin called the case of the Boston Bar Association against Daniel H. Coakley. Mr. Coakley, who had taken a seat with his office associate, Attorney W. Minot Hurd, as court opened, rose and presented a motion to have the hearing delayed until after the Legislature had acted upon a bill to authorize the transfer of disbarment hearings to the Superior Court.

The motion read:

"And now comes the respondent in the above case and moves that the case be continued for trial until the final disposition of the bill now pending in the Legislature, empowering the transfer of disbarment proceedings from the Supreme to the Superior Court."

After filing this motion he read a long typed address to Justice Charles F. Jenney. In this address Mr. Coakley rehearsed his professional career and the history of the charges against him, which he claimed were the product of perjury and conspiracy.

"AN AUTOPSY."

"This is not a hearing which I am facing here," he declared, "it is an autopsy."

Mr. Coakley referred to his previous motion for a transfer of the case to the Superior Court for a jury trial. He said this motion has been denied.

He stated that with all due despect to the presiding justice he could not under the circumstances expect a fair and impartial trial.

He stated that while there was no precedent for such a transfer of a disbarment petition, on the other hand there is nothing in the law to prevent it.

Justice Jenney said, in part:

DISAGREEABLE TASK.

"Sitting here this morning is one of the most disagreeable duties of my life. This court is not desirous of having jurisdiction in matter of this kind. Mr. Coakley has tried cases before a number of my associates with no criticism, so that so far as that is concerned he stands before me with an absolutely clear record.

"If this case goes on I shall be guided to remember from the beginning to the end my duty to weigh the testimony simply in this case, and if it turns out that there has been an error so far as Mr. Coakley is concerned there will be no one rejoices more than I shall the occasion to acquit him.

"The court has no power for the dismissal of these proceedings because they might have been brought in the Superior Court. Already it has been decided that there could be no other decision than that this court has no authority to order this petition to be heard before the Superior Court, no matter what it may have wished to do.

"It is now the 17th of April. The Legislature has been in session for more than three months. The time for filing of petitions has long since elapsed. The time for report of committees also has elapsed.

DENIES MOTION.

"It has been known for weeks that this case was likely to be set down during the last week in February for the first week in March. I deferred action in this case. Two weeks ago this case was assigned for a hearing at this date.

"Under the circumstances and while I appreciate force of what has been said and while I have no desire to hear this case, I feel constrained to deny Mr. Coakley's motion."

Judge Robert G. Dodge, speaking for the Bar Association, said:

SEND FOR DEFENDANT.

"If Your Honor please, we propose to offer in the first instance evidence of the so-called Stearns case, which was brought up in connection with the Tufts case, and which is referred to in paragraphs 15 and 16 in the substitute petition.

"Mr. Coakley has just agreed with me that the typewritten testimony taken in the case may be put in before your Honor."

Justice Jenney said:

"Mr. Coakley did not agree so that it is a matter of court record. He is not now in court, therefore I cannot receive it."

The court then took a short recess while Mr. Coakley was sent for.

Within a few minutes Mr. Coakley returned to the courtroom and took a seat within the bar inclosure.

Attorney Dodge then addressed the court as follows:

"If your honor please, to save the time of the court, Mr. Coakley is willing to agree in open court that the testimony of the witnesses and the exhibits put in in the Tufts case with reference to the Stearns matter may be treated as evidence before your Honor."

Mr. Coakley then informed the court that he had no objection to this procedure.

Attorney Dodge then read the names of the witnesses in the Stearns matter which he wished the court to hear. Mr. Coakley then addressed Attorney Dodge:

"Would it not be fair, in view of my not having any objection, to present the transcript of that evidence to the court?"

LEFT COURT AGAIN.

Mr. Coakley then declared he would again retire from the room if there was nothing for him to stay for. Justice Jenney declared he would be pleased to have Mr. Coakley remain in the room.

Attorney Coakley then said:

"I do not care to stay, Your Honor."

He then left the room.

Attorney Dodge thereupon said:

"Submitting that evidence to your Honor, I wish merely to add a few words. The evidence of this case, we think, shows sufficient grounds for the granting of the petition. There is no reason why the time of the court should be taken up with hearing other evidence.

"The only function of the Bar Association is to inform the court and we therefore do not feel like saying that we rest unless we have the approval of the court, and unless it be clearly understood that the court either now or upon reflection thinks that further evidence may be introduced in which case we will introduce it."

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, April 15th, on shipments sold out ranged from 7.00 cents to 18.75 cents per pound and averaged 12.47 cents per pound."—Advt.

2 ACQUITTED IN 'LIGHTED LAMP' CASE BY JURY

Ambrose D. Gring and Mrs. Natalie Woodward Found Not Guilty

The "Lighted Lamp" may shine again.

A jury today returned a verdict of "not guilty" against Ambrose D. Gring and Mrs. Natalie Woodward, charged with maintaining a public nuisance.

They were proprietors of the "Lighted Lamp," a tea room at No. 108 Myrtle street, West End.

The jury was out five hours, returning a sealed verdict. Trial was Testimony given by police who raided the "Lighted Lamp" called it a rendezvous of painted men and butterfly girls. The defence attorney argued that police were biased.

The "Lighted Lamp" was snuffed out about a year ago, following a raid in which several girls were escorted to the street by police and the proprietors arrested.

COX WILL NOT LET DOVER OUT

Governor Cox today vetoed and sent back to the Legislature the bill which would allow the town of Dover to withdraw from the Metropolitan District.

Governor Cox declared in his veto message that Dover went into this district with thirty-seven other cities and towns more than thirty years ago, that she has enjoyed the benefits of beautiful highways and public reservations and that she should not be allowed to withdraw and thus force her share of the burden upon her sister communities.

"It has been generally believed," said Governor Cox, "that the evolution and growth of the Metropolitan District have been of distinct advantage to the communities served and to the Commonwealth.

"To an excellent water supply and an adequate system of sewage disposal have been added reservations and boulevards of great natural beauty and usefulness.

"The preservation and improvement of the Blue Hills, Middlesex Fells, Nantasket, Revere and other beaches, with a waterfront of thirteen miles, for the healthful outdoor enjoyment of the people is a mighty accomplishment.

"The Charles River basin has been created and the banks of the upper river greatly improved. There can be no question of the necessity of preserving the integrity of the district which has so richly contributed to the happiness and well being of our thickly settled metropolitan population."

BILL LETS WOMEN IN ALL OFFICES

The legislative Committee on Judiciary today voted to report a bill granting to the women of Massachusetts the unqualified right to hold any appointive or elective office in the State.

They voted to appoint a sub-committee to draft a bill which will make women eligible for compulsory jury duty.

The decision to report the wide-open bill was based on the Supreme Court opinion that women are entitled to serve in any office within the gift of the people.

The present law says women may be elected or appointed to any office "except as provided by the Constitution." The new bill will eliminate the six qualifying words.

TWO HELD FOR BREAK IN ROXBURY HOUSE

John Mattarozzo of Magnolia avenue, Roxbury, was arraigned in Roxbury court today charged with breaking and entering the house of Max Taylor, No. 41 Intervale street, Roxbury, and stealing property valued at $60. Mattarezzo was held in $3,000 bail for hearing April 27. Nathan P. Elliott of West Roxbury, who was arraigned in West Roxbury court today charged with having burglar tools and a loaded revolver in his possession, was also linked with the break of the Taylor home and will be arraigned in the Roxbury court later.

BELIEVE COOK ON SHIP JUMPED OVERBOARD

T. F. Driscoll, second cook on the British steamship Maravi, in today from Preston, Cuba, has been missing since last Friday night and is believed to have committed suicide by jumping into the sea. Driscoll signed on at Boston on March 30, when the ship was about to sail for Cuba. He was twenty-seven years old and gave his address as Huntington avenue, Brookline, but did not give any number. He had threatened to kill himself and his effects were found neatly piled in his bunk.

FIREBUG MAKES HIS SEVENTH ATTEMPT IN ROXBURY BUILDING

FOILED BY POLICE ON GUARD

Eighteen Families Thrown Into Panic by Series of Mysterious Blazes

Terror of the unseen firebug who has set fire to the four-story brick tenement at No. 109 Sterling street, Roxbury, six times during the past three months, deepened today in the hearts of the eighteen families living there when police discovered a seventh attempt to burn the building.

Occupants of the building have been thrown into a state of panic, fearing that some further attempt of the unknown fire fiend may be successful.

The last effort was particularly daring because it came less than twenty-four hours after the State police had been assigned to the case.

It differs from all of the previous attempts in that it happened in broad daylight. As before, the spot selected for starting the fire was the roof, near the top of the dumb-waiter shaft. Disaster was averted only by prompt action on the part of Patrolmen Duggan and Griffin of the Roxbury Crossing station.

SAW NO ONE LEAVE.

Since State and city police determined to make a thorough investigation of the mysterious fires, officers on the route which includes the tenement have been ordered to go inside every time they pass it.

Shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning the two patrolmen entered the building. They mounted to the roof. There they discovered a brisk blaze in the wooded pent-house which covers the elevator-shaft opening. Kerosene had been sprinkled liberally about. A few buckets of water put out the blaze.

HINT LOVE MOTIVE.

Inmates of the building can arrive at no satisfactory conclusion concerning the origin of the fires. Some declare that a jilted sweetheart of one of the girls living there is seeking revenge spurred on by insane jealousy. Others assert that a pyromaniac is lurking in the neighborhood. Still others say that a feud against certain foreign-born occupants of the apartments is at the bottom of the affair.

Some go so far as to hint that the guilty party may live in the building. They point out that some of the fires were started after the front door had been locked for the night, and that no one has ever been seen fleeing from the place after a blaze is discovered.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS FOR ATTACKING POLICEMAN

As an aftermath to a rough and tumble fight with Patrolman Murphy of the Charlestown station, Richard P. Callahan of Lexington street, Charlestown, in Charlestown Court today was given six months on the charge of assault. The prisoner was in on a like charge a few days ago after a fight with Patrolman Lohens of the same station. On that occasion he was given a suspended term of three months.

Reconciled to Husband by Spurned Suitor's Suicide

MRS. MARTHA MOORE.

ESTRANGED WIFE IN TRAGEDY RECONCILED

"I loved my husband. I had not realized how deeply I loved. I warned the other man to keep away from me."

So does Mrs. Martha Moore, for love of whom Burton Swain fatally shot himself in her rooms, No. 12 Dillaway street, as she looked on, explain the tragedy.

She had been estranged from her husband, Frederick G. Moore, employed by a Charlestown baker, for some months. During those months she met Swain, a young musician of great promise, who became infatuated with her. He shot himself when she told him she had effected a reconciliation and was going back to live with her husband.

Mrs. Moore, fleeing from the suicidal chamber in the South End, spent Sunday with her husband at the home of her sister on Cortes street, Back Bay. Swain's body lay at the Southern mortuary. His seventy-four-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary A. Swain, and his brother, Fred, were prostrated at the latter's home, Chestnut Hill avenue, Wakefield.

OFFICER FAILS TO USE CLUB;

McGowan was badly battered in the fight.

His uniform was torn literally from his body. He was a mass of bruises, cuts and scratches and was beneath the two battling prisoners, police said, when rescued.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

At the Hanover street station while the men were being booked he slipped to the floor unconscious. He was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital where medical aid was rendered. He was then taken to his home.

In rescuing the battered policeman, Sergeant Sullivan, leading reserves from the station, fired his revolver at a fleeing man, who stopped and surrendered.

A pedestrian led to the patrolman's predicament. He entered the station house saying someone was being murdered in Morton street, North End.

"I think it's a policeman," he said. "I found his helmet in the gutter."

HALTED BY SHOT.

He handed Sergeant Sullivan McGowan's hat. Sullivan immediately hurried with the stranger to Morton street, where McGowan was found beneath two battling men, his uniform gone, but still gamely endeavoring to overcome double odds with fists alone.

McGonagle, police charge, fled as help arrived, but was halted when Sergeant Sullivan fired after him.

McGowan said he was attacked when he attempted to arrest McGonagle on a charge of disturbance.

INCREASE FUNDS FOR HUGHES AND DAUGHERTY

Washington, April 17.—Requests of Secretary Hughes and Attorney-General Daugherty for more funds for expenses next year of the State and Justice Departments, respectively, were granted to a considerable degree by the Senate appropriations committee today in reporting the annual supply bill for those departments. It carried $2,200,000 more than the $26,000,000 provided by the House.

SEEKS FAVORED CUSTOMERS OF EDISON CO.

An investigation of the widely different rates charged by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to a score of its biggest customers was begun today by former Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill in the rate case brought by the city of Boston and the Boston American.

Hill anounced he intended to find out whether there is an uniform system existing by which the Edison imposes different rates upon different customers and what effect those rates have upon the more than 100,000 customers who are charged the top price of ten cents per kilowatt hour.

Hill asked for all the facts which enter into the rates of the New England Power Company, the Quincy Company the Weymouth Company, Hood Rubber Company, Watertown Arsenal, Gillette Safety Razor Company, Plymouth Rubber Company, Revere Rubber Company, S. A. Woods Machine Company, American Tube Works, Holtzes-Cabot Company, the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Boston Ice Company.

He asked the Edison for the total cost of service to those companies and what portion of the general investment, producing, distributing and other costs of the Edison are charged to all of those institutions and what proportion is charged to each.

Hill's demand was made while Electrical Engineer Leonard L. Elden of the Edison was on the witness stand at the hearing before the Department of Publice Utilities. Mr. Elden agreed to supply any figures which the Edison may be able to compile.

Mr. Elden was then examined at length by Atorney Grenvilel S. MacFarland of the Boston American to determine what are the elements of cost that cause the Edison to charge 10 cents to the more than 100,000 customers while charging as low as cents per kilowatt hours to a relatively smal lnumber of remaining customers.

Mr. Elden said the A rate customer, who uses current for lighting and is charged the highest rate, is the most inefficient customer the Edison has.

He said the cost to the Edison of getting the A rate customer's current from the generating plant to the sub-stations is greater but admitted that no compilation of that cost has ever been made.

GET VOTERS FROM BED FOR SPECIAL MEETING

Providence, April 17.—Wakened from their slumbers long after midnight, Jamestown voters went sleepily to a town meeting today and voted 120 to 75 to oust the three directors of the Jamestown Steam Ferry Company. It was alleged the directors were spending money without authorization of the townspeople. When the directors refused to resign on demand of the town officials a special midnight meeting was called. Messengers were sent through the town to awaken the voters. The directors ousted were Thomas R. Wright, Martin J. Barney and George C. Car.

NOTED STAGE FOLK AT VOKES' FUNERAL

Funeral services for Harry Vokes, one-time member of the famous vaudeville team of Ward and Vokes and who died as the result of an oil plant explosion in Everett, were held from his late residence, No. 4 Grover street, Everett, and the Church of the Immaculote Conception today. Rev. Father Joseph F. Bonner celebrated high mass of requiem. Among noted actors and actresses present were "Hap" Ward, former partner of Mr. Vokes; "Sandy" Chapman and Anna Eva Fay.

AGED MAN IS HELD FOR ATTACK WITH CLEAVER

Giuseppe Speare, seventy-three years old, of Harbor court, East Boston, and Giuseppe Infanto, twenty-seven, a neighbor, were both badly used up in a wild battle in which police allege Speare attacked the younger man with a cleaver. According to the police, the older Giuseppe and his wife had been interrupted by Infanto while having a family quarrel. Speare was taken to the Relief Hospital after he had been arrested charged with assault with intent to kill.

YELLOW TAIL LIGHTS FOR AUTOS ADVOCATED

New York, April 17.—A campaign for yellow tail lights for automobiles instead of red has been begun by the Society of Automotive Engineers. A statement today from the society declared the red light was the cause of many night accidents. Road danger signals of red frequently are taken for auto lights, the statement said, and motorists thinking they are driving around standing cars crash into obstacles.

Children Leave for Capital to Free War Prisoners

St. Louis, April 17.—The "Children's Crusade for Amnesty" departed today for Terre Haute, Ind., the first lap of its journey to Washington, where President Harding will be petitioned to release 113 imprisoned men convicted of violating wartime acts.

SEMENOFF SEEN IN NEW PLOT FOR REVOLT

Washington, April 17 (By International News Service).—Japan was charged with having armed the "White Armies" of Russia, led by Generals Kolchak and Semenoff, by Colonel Charles H. Morrow, former American commander in Siberia, in testifying today before the Senate labor committee.

Washington, April 17.—Suggestion that General Semenoff, now in jail in New York, was en route to Paris for the purpose of meeting Grand Duke Nicholas to plan a counter revolution against the Soviet regime in Russia, was made by Immigration Inspector Zurbrick at Vancouver.

The statement was made in a report to the Immigration Bureau following an examination of the Russian office.

The report of the inspector, laid before the Senate Labor Committee today by Commissioner General Husband of the immigration service, stated that admission of the anti-Bolshevik leader to the United States was the only course immigration authorities could have pursued, unless he had been "arbitrarily debarred."

Bakhmeteff Comes to Defence of Semenoff

Washington, April 17.—Within a few hours after the State Department had confirmed his right to the title of "Russian Ambassador" today, Boris Bakhmeteff came to the defence of General Gregory Semenoff, now in a New York jail on civil charges, while efforts are being made to hold him for the murder of American soldiers.

"General Semenoff is not responsible for the deaths of American soldiers," Bakhmeteff told the International News Service. "In the chaotic conditions which prevailed in Siberia he could not prevent it."

RAID REVEALS A ROMANCE

Saturday night to meet and wed Ralph Herdst, twenty-two years old, who lives at the Astor street address. She is a silk worker in Allentown, and had met her sweetheart there last Christmas. Later they became engaged and the wedding was to be performed as soon as she got to town.

But the railroad schedule spoiled that plan. It was too late when she arrived Saturday to obtain a license and there was nothing to do but wait until Monday. She knew nothing of the five-day waiver necessary if she wished to be wed immediately.

Her story was corroborated by Herdst, and after listening to it Judge Ahern told Herdst and Miss Sassaman he would postpone sentence to enable them to go to the City Hall, file their marriage intention, get the license and return to him for the necessary waiver for an immediate ceremony. The pair left the court for City Hall.

The raid at No. 75 Astor street today is the second by the Back Bay police within a short time. A few days ago several men and girls were arrested in a raid at No. 55 Astor street.

BULK OF KING FORTUNE TO WIFE AND FAMILY

Providence, April 17.—The will of George Gordon King was proved in the Probate Court at Newport today. Among the bequests are $10,000 to Annie Mackenzie King, his wife $500 to each of five godchildren, $500 each to the servants employed for four years, $3,000 to Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church; $10,000 to H. W. Jerbey of New York, $10,000 for foreign missionary work in Liberia, $10,000 to St. George School, Neport; $5,000 to Trinity Church and $5,000 to the United Congregational Church. To the wife is left all the real estate and to each of the three children is given $25,000 in cash. The Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company is left $300,000 in trust, the income to be divided equally among the children.

SMITH'S NOTES TO 'BABY' ARE REVEALED

Providence, R. I., April 17.—Reports of reconciliation between Mrs. Alice Thompson Smith of Barrington, head of the local branch of the W. C. T. U., and her husband, State Senator Arthur L. Smith, president of the Rhode Island Senate and head of the Smith-Holden Company, were indignantly denied today by Mrs. Smith.

"The decision of the court granting me a legal separation from Mr. Smith and the custody of my children," she said, "is the end. There is not a trace of bitterness in my heart toward my husband, despite his unfaithfulness. I do not hate him. Indeed I pity him sincerely, but while I pity him I have come to the end of my patience. I forgave him once and took him back. But I cannot do that again."

AWAIT ALIMONY DECREE.

Mrs. Smith and her friends are waiting for the decision of the court on the question of alimony, which is expected to be handed down early this week.

Her suit for divorce and the counter suit filed by the Senator, each charging misconduct and cruelty against the other, were fought with depositions. The court, after hearing but a part of them, closed the testimony and took the case under advisement, later announcing a verdict in favor of Mrs. Smith.

Under the terms of that verdict she retains the use of the eighteen-room house at Barrington and the custody of her three children, Donald H. Smith, Maybelle T. Smith and Arthur D. Smith, Jr.

Letters, said by Mrs. Smith to have been written by her husband to the thirty-two-year-old stenographer, Miss Mary O'Day, have now been brought to light.

ARDENT LOVE LETTERS.

They breathe the ardent devotion of a schoolboy lover for his girl sweetheart, revealing Senator Smith's deep infatuation for the girl for whose sake he appeared willing to sacrifice his business, domestic and political career.

"Dearest Baby" he calls her in more than one of the letters. "Your Own Commodore" is his favorite signature, although at times he signs himself "Your Own Harry," or "Your Own With Constant Kisses."

The signature, "Commodore," has reference to the many yachting trips taken by Miss O'Day and the president of the Rhode Island Senate, in Smith's yacht.

Sixteen letters were introduced by Mrs. Smith. Three were read in court at the hearing. In one of these the State senator told Miss O'Day to meet him at the Hotel Essex in Boston. Yet another gave her instructions regarding a trip to Boston on the Colonial line boat. She was told to go to the "stateroom of C. H. King."

"King," says Mrs. Smith was Senator Smith himself.

The letter says:

ENCLOSED BOAT TICKET.

"Dear Babe: I am enclosing ticket for the Colonial line. Go aboard the steamer any time after 5 o'clock. Have a porter show you to stateroom D and you will find Mr. C. H. King in the stateroom. I trust and hope your cold will be better. With love and x, Your Commodore."

The married unhappiness of the Smiths began about eight years ago, according to the deposition made by Mrs. Smith. It was then she learned for the first time of her husband's infatuation for the Pawtucket stenographer. For years, Mrs. Smith declares, "I struggled with my sense of self respect and my desire to do nothing that would injure the political career of my husband—finally my self-respect won. I brought suit for divorce."

That suit was dropped when Smith promised to have nothing more to do with Miss O'Day. But the hold of the stenographer was too strong. Mrs. Smith then brought suit for legal separation and won.

ALONE WITH CHILDREN.

Alone with her three young children, the oldest sixteen years, Mrs. Smith lives at the Barrington home, the home she and her husband worked so hard for eighteen years to get.

"We strove and sacrificed for this place," she explained. "It seems too bad that we should now have it all end this way. Such a woman as Miss O'Day can cause much unhappiness and sorrow in this world."

Mrs. Smith blames Charles H. McKenna, an intimate of the Senate leader, for her trouble. It was McKenna who introduced Miss O'Day to Senator Smith.

"I struggled against Senator Smith's intimacy with this man for years, but to no avail," declared Mrs. Smith.

DIVORCED WIFE SPURNS RECONCILIATION

MRS. ALICE THOMPSON SMITH

'Baby' Letters That Broke Up Home

TEXT OF LETTER.

Here is the text of some of the letters written by State Senator Arthur L. Smith of Barrington, R. I., to Miss Mary U. O'Day, Pawtucket stenographer, who is blamed by Mrs. Smith for breaking up the Senator's home:

Providence, R. I., Oct. 31, '19.

Dearest Mary—I am just longing for Thursday to come. Can hardly wait. Will meet you Monday Plainville at 3 p. m. Your own Commodore.

Providence, R. I., 10:45 p. m.

Dearest Babe—Just arrived. Four hours on the train from Barrington. Do you intend to go to the theatre today? I met Mr. McKenna on the train and he said the Modern was much better than the Victory. On account of the weather don't you think we'd better postpone the theatre to next week? If you can go today I can, and would you rather go to the Modern or the Victory? Give your reply to Mr. Stevens and I will meet you at the theatre you say at 3:30 p. m. sure. Dear, how was the chicken? Your own Harry.

The last question referred to a fowl he had killed and plucked for her himself.

HAD TO BREAK "DATE."

Tuesday, 4:30 p. m.

Dearest Baby: When I reached the office I found a call on my desk to call Doctor W. F.—'s office. On calling him up, he said that he was going to give a dinner to the Governor and the leaders of the Senate Friday, 7 p. m. He insisted that I be there, so Babe Dearest, don't scold if I am compelled to accept. So, Honey Dear, why don't you return to Providence on Saturday? I will meet you at the office or at Brook street. So, do be good to me—and write or phone me what time Saturday we will meet.

"With best love and Christmas greetings to you and dear Dolly,

"Your own with Christmas kisses."

IV.

December 11, '19.

Dearest Baby: Will be up about 1:30 p. m., and will bring lunch with me. "Your Commodore."

V.

Providence, R. I.,
February 5, 1920.

My Own Dearest: I am so worried thinking you may be sick—trust this note will find you well and happy. Oh! What a storm. Spring is only a little way coming—and then many dreams come true. Last night I killed my last "chicken," plucked it and fixed it up—for you. I only wish I could be with you when it is cooked. When you do get one do call me up. With love to you, dear,

"Your Own Harry."

GIRL FOUND ON FATHER'E GRAVE UNCONSCIOUS

Taunton, April 17.—Doris Turner, eighteen years old, was found unconscious on the grave of her father in the Mayflower Hill Cemetery today. She was found by John J. Rice and Howard M. Briggs.

The girl was taken to the Morton Hospital, where she is still unconscious. Hospital authorities said she had been overcome by grief. She left home to go to her work, but did not reach there. She is the daughter of Ellen M. Turner of No. 49 Van Buren street, Taunton. Her father has been dead about two years.

MGR. SPLAINE DUE IN BOSTON ON THURSDAY

Monsignor Michael J. Splaine of Roxbury, special secretary to Cardinal O'Connell on his trip to the Conclave and the coronation of the new Pope, will arrive in Boston Thursday, it was announced at his parish church, St. Joseph's of Roxbury, yesterday

The announcement was contained in a letter from Monsignor Splaine which conveyed Easter greetings to priests and parishioners. It had been previously expected that the Monsignor would accompany the Cardinal on his trip to Washington, following their landing in New York on Wednesday.

Special home coming exercises will be held on Friday morning by children of St. Joseph's School.

TAXIS HIT CROWD; ONE KILLED; DRIVERS HELD

New York, April 17.—Charles Syracuse and Marco Tortora, taxicab drivers, were held today in $5,000 bail each on manslaughter charges, for driving their machines into a crowd to avoid a collision. Florence Bond, eleven, of Long Island City, was instantly killed by one of the machines. Ten other persons were hurt, including Mrs. Nora Boerum of Bridgeport, Ct., whose skull was fractured.

MACKEREL FROM SOUTH SENT HERE BY TRAIN

Fresh mackerel from the South are arriving in Boston today, coming by express from Cape May and Atlantic City. Despatches from New York say the steamer John Delmar arrived today with 7,000 pounds of mackerel. This is the first direct arrival at Fulton Market. Fresh mackerel are selling for 30 cents a pound at the South Boston pier.

ULMER THREAT TOLD IN TRIAL OF PIERCE

Would "Throw Heirs Into Gutter," Woman Swears Attorney Said

Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer threatened to "throw all the heirs of the Wood estate into the gutter if they didn't obey his wishes," testified Mrs. Mary E. Hand, former treasurer of the Waban Rose Conservatories, today at the Legislative hearing on a petition to oust Supreme Court Justice Edward P. Pierce for alleged misconduct in office.

Mr. Ulmer was counsel for the conservatories and the Henry Wood Sons Company.

Mrs. Hand declared that Attorney Ulmer made the statement while explaining to her his method of managing the properties.

"I have papers signed by all the heirs of the estate," she testified Mr. Ulmer said, "and now I don't need them any more.

CONFERRED WITH JUDGE.

"They've got to do what I say. If they don't obey my wishes I'll throw them all into the gutter."

This testimony, with a ruling admitting evidence aimed to show that Judge Pierce conspired with Mr. Ulmer in seeking to place full control of the properties in the latter's hands, featured the day's session.

Witness said Mr. Ulmer told her he had often sought the judge's advice and once asserted he "didn't care what anybody else thought of what he did so long as he pleased Judge Pierce."

"When Mr. Ulmer started sending flowers to the judge," witness added, "he told me he thought it was wise to have a friend in court. Ulmer thought the gifts might mean the judge's influence later on."

Mrs. Hand said she knew of no reason why Judge Pierce should have taken an interest in the property or why Mr. Ulmer should have courted his advice and infuence.

"Several times when I visited Mr. Ulmer's office on Beacon street," she said "Mr. Ulmer would leave me and run up to see Judge Pierce.

"He told me he had often sought the judge's advice when he was in doubt on certain things or when he didn't know just how to make out certain papers.

"He said he was frequently aided by the judge's suggestions and that he was acting under the judge's orders when he did certain things. He consulted the judge at the time control of the stoock in the conservatories and the Henry Wood Company paint properties were placed in Mr. Ulmer's hands.

SUIT PENDING.

"He also consulted with the judge once when a suit was being pressed against the company. He said he was acting under instructions of the Supreme Court and he didn't care what anybody said so long as he pleased Judge Pierce.

"A short time after I had been to the courthouse and had a talk with Judge Pierce I met him on the street. He asked me how things were going. I told him it looked as though we wouldn't be able to pull through unless something turned up.

"'Well, Mr. Ulmer is a peculiar and erratic man,' the judge said, 'but he's an excellent man for the present situation.'

GETS YEAR FOR TAKING $350 FROM MAID

Girl Says Suitor Fled When She Gave Him Money to Enter Business

Robert Seadale, formerly of Dorchester, who was arrested by the Lynn police at Bridgeport, Ct., on the charge of larceny of $350 from Alma Carlson, a maid in the employ of a Lynn banker, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction today by Judge Reeve of the Lynn Court.

Seadale pleaded not guilty. He appealed and was held in $1,000 bonds for the Grand Jury.

Miss Carlson alleges Seadale courted her for a month, then told her he needed $350 for an operation and to engage in business. She charges that after he received the money he fled to Connecticut.

Flood Danger Less

Biddeford, Me., April 17.—Flood threats, caused by the high water flowing over Bradbury dam, were quieted today with the report the volume has decreased five inches since Saturday night. The flow still is the highest since 1903.

Hard Labor Terms Limited by the Supreme Court

By International News Service.

Washington, April 17.—The Supreme Court of the United States today decided that no person could be imprisoned at hard labor without presentment and an indictment by a Grand Jury because the punishment brought the crime under the category of infamous crimes.

DENIES SHE WILL MARRY CHAPLIN

New York, April 17.—Two of the really smart girls of the movies have reached Fifth avenue. They are May Collins and Mary Thurman. Miss Collins is wearing the $3,000 silver fox fur Charlie Chaplin brought her from England. She says: "No, we're not to be married. I was engaged to him eight months ago. He is the most admirable man I know, but I don't love him. I don't believe Charlie Chaplin is the real loving or marrying kind."

MANICURIST IS WILLING TO TAKE STAND

Hartford, Ct., April 17.—Dashing Elizabeth Bateman Gilmore, the pretty blue-eyed, auburn-haired, Providence, R. I., manicure girl, reported to be the "girl of mystery" in the now famous Morrill divorce trial today, told the Boston American she wants to be called as a witness when the case is resumed at the Dedham Superior Court, April 24.

Her announcement gives another sensational twist to a case that has already caused Boston and Brookline society circles to gasp with astonishment. Leon G. Morrill, wealthy ink manufacturer, is suing his attractive wife, Florence R., and naming two co-respondents, Douglas S. Carter and Seth K. Chase, a former lieutenant colonel in the U. S. air service.

Quite by accident came the entrance of the "mystery girl" in the case. Attorney Lothrop Withington, assistant to Sherman L. Whipple, Mrs. Morrill's counsel, naively asked Morrill about a trip he took to New Hampshire. This trip, Morrill said, was of several days' duration.

Pressed as to who accompanied him, he said a Mr. and Mrs. Carret and a Betty Gilmore, or Gilman, he didn't remember which. He had never seen the Gilmore woman before.

Here, where she was born and reared, where she came to spend Easter with relatives, Miss Gilmore discussed the linking of her name with the case.

"Yes, I'm willing and anxious to be summoned," she said. "You know why? Well, because first and last, I don't know, never knew or heard of the Morrills until I happened to read something about the trial in the papers. It's simply a case of mistaken identity. I never was in New Hampshire or Maine in my life.

"Reports linking my name as the girl who went on some trip or other with Mr. Morrill are simply ridiculous. The only reason I can assign for it was last week when one of my customers started to 'kid' me and ask me if I was the mysterious Betty. We laughed, thought it a good joke, and then forgot it.

GERMANY GIVES RECOGNITION TO SOVIET

By International News Service.

Genoa, April 17.—Germany and Russia have concluded an economic treaty, it was learned on high authority today.

All war claims each country held against the other have been swept off the table. The two countries are resuming friendly relations with a clean slate.

The treaty provides for immediate recognition of the Russian Soviet government by Germany.

The news of the treaty had the effect of a bombshell on the allied delegates to the economic conference.

The Russians are now expected to give their formal answer to the allies' demand that Soviet Russia recognize all the Russian debts. The impression prevails the Russians will agree to recognize the debts provided some means are found to assist the Russians financially.

The rumor Mr. Lloyd George plans another conference in which it is hoped to have the United States represented will not down.

Lenin Message Sent to Harding

By International News Service.

Washington, April 17.—A message that is expected to be an important factor in shaping the administration's policy toward Soviet Russia is en route from Nicolai Lenin to President Harding. It is being brought to the United States by ex-Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana, who has been in Russia in connection with the administration of American relief distribution.

Two More Parleys Held Necessary

Genoa, April 17 (By the Associated Press).—Experts and delegates are agreed it probably will be necessary to have two more conferences, at least, before harmony is restored in Europe and financial recognition is put under way.

Frank A. Vanderlip, the American financier; Professor Gustav Cassel, Swedish economist, and other experts apparently are agred that summoning of a disarmament conference is a necessary step before a successful financial or economic conference is possible.

Prisoner Dying in Mile-a-Minute Train Leap

Corning, N. Y., April 17.—Jumping from a passenger train today while it was moving 60 miles an hour, Selig Rothstein of New York was fatally injured. Rothstein, wanted for robbery in New York, was being returned from Akron by a detective. Overpowering the detective, Rothstein darted to the rear of the train and leaped.

LITTLE GIRL IS KILLED BY DOG AFTER DOLL

New Bedford, April 17.—Her nose bitten off and her face and body lacerated by the teeth of a collie which attacked her in an effort to recover a large doll his little mistress had allowed him to hold, seven-year-old Dora A. Martell of Acushnet street died in Dr. Bradford's Hospital here.

Death followed within half an hour after the attack by the dog.

Dora had gone to visit Alice Giere on James street. Alice had a doll both children adored. The two children began "playing house" on the lawn of the Giere home. The collie apparently thought Dora was making off with his little mistress' property and attacked her.

The screams of the child brought Giere to the spot too late to save the child. The dog has been ordered killd.

3 ON TRIAL FOR THEFT OF LEATHER WORTH $2,500

Benjamin Saltzer, Jacob Freeman, John Ryan and Clifford E. Bates, charged with stealing 2,100 pounds of leather, valued at $2,500, were placed on trial in Superior Criminal Court today. The theft is alleged to have been made from a warehouse at No. 23 Wormwood street, South Boston, belonging to the William T. Shackley & Sons Company, on September 17, 1919, during the police strike.

NEW SCHEME TRICKS OLD GEM TRADERS

Watch out for the latest brand of thief!

He's a well dressed, smooth spoken young man who has devised a method of exchanging a worn hat for $3,000 in gems.

He puts up at the best hotels, and lounges through their lobbies, as one to the manor born.

As a result of meeting him, Mrs. Alma H. Raymond, sixty-four years old; Fred M. Raymond, her son, and Miss Flossie Humphries of the West End learned something about jewelry trading which twenty years' experience in that business had not taught them.

TRADERS TRICKED.

The trio buy jewelry and resell it to persons who believe they get a better bargain by buying from other individuals than from regular stores. They advertise in a modest way that intending purchasers can save money as they are in financial straits and need the money.

Such an ad brought to Mrs. Raymond's home, No. 23 Irving street, a young man of apparent means calling himself "Malcolm Howard" and claiming the Hotel Lenox as his residence. He arranged to have $3,000 worth of jewelry displayed to him at the Parker House, later at the Lenox, and finally at the Copley Plaza.

HUNT FOR THIEF.

He went from the Copley-Plaza, leaving his hat, going ostensibly to cash a check. He took the jewelry with him. So far as can be learned he still has it. But none knows his whereabouts.

The kitchenette section is being scoured by headquarters sleuths, and the Rogue's Gallery is being gone over for trace of him. The police of the entire East have been notified to watch out for him, and a warning has also been issued to all other persons having jewelry for sale.

SUGAR IMPORTERS ASK ADJUSTMENT OF LOSSES

Washington, April 17.—Sugar importers who acted as government agents for importation of sugar from Argentine to relieve a shortage in the United States, today asked the House Agriculture Committee to sanction a resolution authorizing the President to direct the Sugar Equalization Board to adjust their losses. The committed voted to compel the board to present its records of dealings with importers.

MEN BRANDED IN MOSCOW PRISON

Berlin, April 17.—Fritz Nolde, German business man, just home after being released from prison in Moscow, declares there has been no modification of the treatment of prisoners there since the Moscow government announced the dreaded Cheka and its methods were things of the past.

Nolde said that from his cell window looking on the prison courtyard he saw naked men branded with hot irons and heard the cries of the victims. His experiences in the Soviet prison were so much more horrible than the shell fire and hardships he endured in the World War that there was no comparison.

He went to Russia in June to sell agricultural machinery, but was arrested and accused of being related to Baron Nolde, who was at one time active in carrying on anti-Bolshevik campaign in Russia.

Several Hungarian officers released with Nolde bore out his assertions concerning cruelties upon prisoners.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE REPLIES TO TINKHAM

Columbus, O., April 17 (By International News Service).—"The Anti-Saloon League of America is the only non-partizan organization in the United States that has complied with the Federal law relating to the filing of reports of receipts and expenditures in connection with election of Congressmen." This was the joint reply made here today by Superintendent James A. White, Columbus., O., Anti-Saloon League, and Attorney Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the league, to the charges voiced against the dry organization by Congressman Tinkham, Massachusetts. "The reason why State leagues have not filed these reports is because the law does not require," the statement added.

HELD FOR HIGH COURT IN WEST END SLASHING

Shuman Marcovitz of Nashua street, West End, was held by Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court today in $3,000 bail for Superior Court on a charge of assault with intent to kill Alex Sitko, a fellow boarder. The man was arrested by Patrolmen Leonard and O'Connell of the Joy street station after a fight with Sitko, during which he was alleged to have slashed Sitko's arm and wrist.

ASKS STRIKERS TO GIVE ONE DAY'S PAY

McMahon's Appeal at Lawrence Regarded as Blow at One Big Union Scheme

Lawrence, April 17.—The struggle between the One Big Union and the Textile Workers of America, which has absorbed public interest in the textile strike here, took a new turn today, when Thomas F. McMahon of the textile workers' organization issued an appeal to all wage workers to contribute one day's pay to the strike fund.

This move, made after a conference in Boston with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is regarded here as an effort to counteract the appeal issued by the One Big Union for all workers to "lay off" one day as a protest against the attitude of the mill managers.

The appeal of McMahon points out that the One Big Union scheme would be "merely waste and would benefit no one," whereas contribution of one day's pay would bind the workers more closely together and largely increase the strike fund.

Ex-Mayor William P. White announced today that he will abandon his business to lead the strikers on to victory.

"I have hesitated about breaking into the labor movement here because of the apparent plenteousness of leaders," declared the ex-official who left the Mayor's chair the first of this year.

"Several cases of families in needy circumstances were called to my attention last Saturday. If this strike is allowed to continue, with rents, food and clothing at their present prices, the poorhouses will be filled in a short time."

Millions of children have learned the way to life-long tooth protection. They will live in a new dental era.

Men everywhere show glistening teeth—free from stains, like tobacco stains, which the film-coats hold.

Added Beauty

Wherever you look you see beautiful teeth. And women smile to show them.

The 5-Year War on Film

Over 10 Million people—of some 40 races—have found a better way to clean teeth.

Now Cleaner Teeth

Careful people the world over now enjoy them

This war on film began five years ago. Leading dentists everywhere gave their co-operation. In many languages, people were urged to clean teeth in a new way. And a ten-day test was offered to every home that asked.

About ten million homes made that test. The results are now seen the world over. You see whiter, cleaner, safer teeth wherever you look today. And everywhere these people tell others how to get them.

Years of research

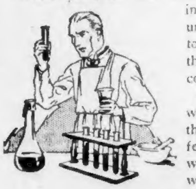
Tooth troubles had been constantly increasing. They were almost universal. Despite the tooth brush, some of these troubles had become alarming.



Most of these troubles were traced to film—that viscous film you feel. Dental science worked for years to find ways to combat it.

How film ruins teeth

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. It forms the basis of dingy coats, including tartar. Then month after month it often remains to threaten serious damage.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy or discolored. Those unsightly coats, if left long, may do much harm.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

Thus film is the teeth's great enemy.

Old ways don't end it

The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat film. So brushing in the old ways left much film intact. Even careful people had unclean teeth, and rarely escaped tooth troubles.

Clearly this condition had to be corrected. So dental investigators made long research for a daily film combatant.

Two effective ways

Some years ago two effective ways were found. Able authorities proved them by many careful tests. Dentists began to employ them.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern requirements. These two film combatants were embodied in it. The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent. Now leading dentists almost the world over are urging its daily use. And careful people everywhere have come to adopt it, largely through their advice.

10 million home tests

A 10-Day Tube was offered to every home that asked. For five years the offer has been published continuously. Some ten million people have already accepted it, and seen for themselves what Pepsodent does for the teeth.

That test is a revelation. The results are convincing. It has brought to countless people a new dental era.

This is to urge that delightful test on all who have not made it. Make it for your sake and your family's sake. When teeth discolor and decay you know that new methods are needed. Then test the method which authorities advise. Learn how to keep teeth cleaner.

Learn how well it pays. Pearly teeth add immensely to the charms of men and women. And everyone knows they are sanitary.

Now Prettier Teeth

Have come to millions—you see them every day

Another result is glistening teeth—teeth you envy, maybe. You see them everywhere. Teeth which once were dim and dingy shine like pearls. Film removal reveals the natural luster.

Then Pepsodent gives the teeth high polish, in a gentle but effective way. It does this without scratching. With that high polish, film-coats cannot easily adhere. Every woman owes herself these benefits to beauty. So do men.

Other vital effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which are almost as important. They are also based on modern research. It combats the starch deposits which cling to teeth and gum them. When the starch ferments it forms acids. Pepsodent multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, which Nature has put there to digest those deposits.

It combats mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize those acids as they form.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting forces. Each use of Pepsodent, in a natural way, gives them manifold effect.

Why people enjoy it

The removal of film and starch deposits makes the mouth feel clean. The natural alkalinity created gives the teeth an added protection.

Used at bedtime, it creates agents to fight film and starch and acids. That gives a new feeling of safety. As teeth grow whiter they assume a beauty which film-coated teeth don't have.

To children it brings new protection. Dentists now advise Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears. That to combat the lasting damage which few children have escaped.

Men who smoke should combat the film before tobacco stains it. Thus they keep teeth white.

These results involve no extra effort. Simply brush the teeth twice daily, as you do. But apply this new-day dentifrice instead of soap and chalk.

Modern authorities advise this. Leading dentists everywhere prescribe it. People all about you, every day, show you the good effects.

One week will show

The Pepsodent results are quick and apparent. Some are almost instant. One week will show you distinct effects which are most convincing. You will gain a new idea of teeth cleaning.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The book we send will tell the reason for each new effect. Then judge by what you see and feel, and decide for yourself what is best. This is too important to delay. Cut out the coupon now.

CLAIMS MORGAN GROUP RULES RAILROADS

Jeff Lauck, Noted Economist, Makes Charges Against Bankers

Washington, April 17.—Existence of an "industrial-railway-banking combination" headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and in control of railroads, coal mines, banks, steel and other industrial enterprises was charged today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by W. Jett Lauck, economist for the American Federation of Labor.

The statement, made in continuance of the committee's railroad survey, was coupled with the assertion that financiers rather than operating officials were responsible for "the plight of the railroads." He opposed reduction of railroad employes' wages, saying railroad financiers were attempting to "deflate" railroad as well as other labor.

Mr. Lauck submitted exhibits to show, he said, "that greater factors in American industry, railway equipment producers, railway repair shops, steel interests, coal, cement and other basic material producers, are closely bound together by inter-capital relations and interlocking directorates, coming to a focus in the banking house of Morgan & Co."

ASKS DRY AGENTS ON DUTY ABROAD

Washington, April 17.—American ambassadors and ministers in foreign capitals would have dry law agents attached to their official staffs under a new plan worked out today by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, as a part of his campaign to stop illegal importation of liquors.

If the plan receives the report of the Treasury officials and the necessarp appropriations are made by Congress, Haynes expects to use such officers in securing advance information of shipments of liquors out of countries like Great Britain, France and Italy so that illicit liquor diversions may be detected before the shipments arrive in this country.

Complaints have been made to prohibition officials that large quantities of foreign whiskey is being shipped into the United States camouflaged in other merchandise.

GENOA LOOKS FOR LENINE AT PARLEY

Paris, April 17.—Lenine is going to make a dramatic last minute appearance at the Genoa Conference, according to a newspaper dispatch from Genoa today. The Rusian Soviet leader is reported anxious to take part in the proceedings.

Bare Knees Will Pass Nantasket Censors This Year

Bare-knee bathing girls can frolic to their hearts' content at Nantasket Beach this season, according to the latest edict of the Metropolitan Park police.

But—and here's the sticker—one-piece bathing suits will be banned. The police declare they see no reason why the girls should be allowed to appear on the sands, clad in this popular costume.

A strict watch is to be kept on clubs which rent cottages at the resort. Piano playing and "pajama dances" in the early hours of the morning are to be stopped. Chief of Police Frank M. Reynolds, of Hull, declares that all pianos in the residential sections of the town must be quiet by 10 o'clock at night.

PASTORS ATTACK CONAN DOYLE

By International News Service.

New York, April 17.—Pastors of New York's biggest churches took note of the presence of Sir A. Conan Doyle, and the things they said of him and his views on spiritualism were wound around such phrases as "gold bricks," "presuming dogmatist" and "open to all sorts of frauds."

"Jesus forever condemned spiritualism as practiced by mediums," said Rev. Christian F. Reisner. "Saul consulted mediums when he was in his dotage. It begins to look as though it is still a mark of senility."

Rev. Percy Stickney Grant made it plain that he had little sympathy with Sir Arthur's predictions that "spiritualism would conquer the world in fifty years. He said:

"We should turn our attention to human needs about us, the need of the coal miners, better wages, better homes and relief for the poor."

Dr. Caleb Stetson insisted that it was absurd to say that spiritualism had any connection with religion.

FASCISTI-COMMUNIST CLASH IN ROME STREET

Rome, April 17—A pitched battle between Fascisti, or Extreme Nationalists, and Communists occurred in the fashionable Via Po quarter where the many tourist hotels are crowded with Americans for the Easter season, driving away the Communists, who, they said, had attacked the Fascisti as the latter emerged from a meeting in the neighborhood.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Wedding of Miss Abbott and Mr. Lothrop at Trinity

By BETTY ALDEN.

MEMBERS of Boston's most exclusive coterie have been bidden to Trinity Church to witness the marriage—at 4 o'clock this afternoon—of Miss Eleanor Abbott and Francis Bacon Lothrop, both of Beacon street.

Ever since the engagement of the young people was announced last August practically the entire smart set has been anticipating the all-important ceremonial which today transforms the younger daughter of the Gordon Abbotts into the bride of young Lothrop, whose mater is Mrs. William Hooper Sturgis Lothrop. There are no end of distinguished family connections on all sides, and many of those bidden to the wedding have prophesied that the event will stand out conspicuously as the most brilliant ceremonial of the entire season.

Ever since the bride made her debut some three years ago she has been one of the most popular girls of her coterie, and was at one time president of the 1919 Sewing Circle. Katherine Abbott, who is to act as maid of honor at her sister's wedding today, was introduced to society the preceding year, both girls being elected to membership in the Vincent and Chilton Clubs. Both Eleanor and her sister are tall and well set-up girls, resembling their distinguished mater, who retains with notable grace the charm and beauty of her Katherine Tiffany days, when she was one of the reigning beauties ov the Oriole City.

Besides her sister, the bride has chosen as her attendants the following girls: Ellen Curtis, daughter of the Charles P. Curtises of Beacon street; Katherine Lane, daughter of Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane of Marlboro street; Marion Emmons, recently of England, who, with her parents, the Hamilton Emmonses, has been spending the Winter here; Miss Marian Vaillant, daughter of the George W. Vaillants of Commonwealth avenue, and Mrs. Samuel K. Lothrop (Rachel Warren), whose husband is to be his brother's best man.

The groom, who received his sheepskin from Harvard last June, rowed on the Crimson crews against Yale in 1919 and 1920, and last year, while at Oxford University, he handled No. 4 oar on the Oxford eight. Among his clubs are the D. K. E. fraternity, the Institute of 1770, the S. K. and Porcellian Clubs. During the war her served with the American Ambulance on the Italian front, being awarded the Italian War Cross for his services.

Of the young men whom the groom has selected to serve as ushers are Edward L. Bigelow, Edward Bangs, Henry G. Crosby, Paul Cabot, Henry Snelling and Gordon Abbott, all of Boston, and J. Nelson Borland, J. F. Havemeyer, J. H. Robb, Gilbert L. Steward and Robert M. Sedgwick of New York.

Immediately after the ceremony at Trinity there will be a reception at the Abbott residence at No. 240 Beacon street.

I understand that young Lothrop and his bride will spend the Summer in the "Borland Cottage," which is situated on the North Shore estate of Eleanor's parents at Manchester. The Abbott estate, known as "Glass Head," is one of the most magnificent places on that entire strip of exclusive shoreline, and it was from there that the news came of Miss Abbott's betrothal.

Apropos of the Abbotts, Katherine Abbott will take part in the famous "drill" when the Vincent Club gives its annual show, "Now and Then," just a week from today at the Plymouth Theatre. The "drill," as everyone knows, is one of the features of the Vincent Club's annual production, the girls taking part being chosen for their attractive appearance.

Today's maid-of-honor was one of the ushers at the presentation of Adelaide Whitman's "Why Not," staged recently at the Opera House. I noted that Eleanor Abbott did not take part in the affair—doubtless because she was very preoccupied with preparations for her wedding day. The trousseau, by the way, was obtained largely in New York, the bride and her mother going over to Gotham a few weeks ago.

SENATORS WILL AMEND BILL FOR BONUS

By International News Service.

Washington, April 17.—Guardians of the public treasury in the Senate today turned their attention to the soldiers' bonus bill. With public hearings scheduled for Wednesday before the Senate Finance Committee, it became apparent that that the administration forces would make a definite atempt to carry out the promise of enacting adjusted compensation at the present session of Congress.

The House bill, although favored by certain factions, will meet with a number of changes before being approved by the Senate committee.

Administeration leaders, under the present plan, hope to write the changes into the House bill:

Elimination of land section.

Authorization for the issuance of $40,000,000 worth of short term certificates expected to be funded from interest payments on the British debt.

The short term certificates marking the greatest change from provisions passed by the House are necessary, in the opinion of administration leaders, for the payment of the cash considerations. It was pointed out that soldiers or sailors entitled to $50 or less under the House bill are permitted to ask for a cash settlement.

In order to meet the first rush of $50 demands Senate leaders believe $40,000,000 in cash would be necessary. The total for this section of the House bill it was said would amount to $200,000,000, but the smaller sum would be sufficient to carry the treasury over "first demands."

The remainder would be paid, it was stated, from current funds in the treasury or from additional issuances of short term certificates if the situation warrants such action.

TORNADO KILLS 7 IN ILLINOIS; INJURES MANY

Centralia, Ill., April 17.—Repor received here state that seven persons were killed and thirty-five injured in the tornado which struck this section early today. One woman was reported killed instantly at Lake Centralia.

A baby was killed and two persons are in the hospital in a critical condition as the result of a tornado which struck Irvington, south of here, today. A number of other injured persons remained in Irvington.

Williamport, Ind., April 17.—One man was killed when his home was blown away by a cyclone which swept across Warren County.

St. Louis, April 17.—Forty-seven persons were rescued from their homes in the southern part of the city by policemen today when the River Des Peres overflowed its banks. A hundred families were forced to move to higher ground.

Danville, Ill., April 17.—Two trainmen were injured when a Big Four mail and expres train was wrecked near Foster, Ind., today. A washout caused the wreck.

600,000 VETERANS KEEP UP INSURANCE

Washington, April 17—World War veterans are carrying government life insurance totaling $3,500,000,000, Col. Charles R. Forbes, head of the veterans' bureau, announced today. Approximately 600,000 persons in government service submitted applications for insurance for a total of $40,000,000,000, he added.

COMPUTING OF WAVE LENGTH CONSIDERED

Must Be Effected in Practice to Tune Into a Particular Station

By A. B. HOAG.

It is practically imposible accurately to compute the fundamental wave length of an areial from its dimensions.

Several highly complex formulas have been set forth by experts, but they are not practical for the beginner in radio work. Many other factors than the dimensions of the aerial operate to vary the fundamental wave length.

Several text books recommend the computation of the wave length by multiplying the length of the aerial plus the length of the lead-in by 4.8. Thus if the aerial were seventy-five feet long and the lead-in twenty-five feet, making the total length 100 feet, the wave length would be 480 feet, or about 148 meters.

This formula, however, is so rough that it has little or no value. In actual practice, a wave meter is employed to determine the wave length of aerials.

CHANGING WAVE LENGTH.

The wave length of an aerial must in practice be changed in order to tune into a particular sending station. This is done in two ways: By adding capacity or inductance.

A condenser in shunt in the aerial increases the wave length of the aerial and a condenser in series decreases the wave length. An inductance in series in an aerial increases the wave length.

This means in practice that if you wish to receive a longer wave length than is possible with your present arrangement it will be necessary to put a condenser in shunt or an inductance in series. This is generally done by inserting in series a coil of concentrated inductance, such as a honeycomb coil.

SECONDARY CIRCUIT.

The secondary circuit as well as the primary circuit must be tuned, so a similar coil must be inserted in the secondary circuit.

When using similar honeycomb coils for a loose coupling between primary and secondary circuits it will be found necessary to insert a condenser in series in the primary circuit in order to make up for the length of the aerial in tuning the primary and secondary circuits.

That is to say, the secondary circuit has nowhere near as much wire in it as the primary because of the aerial, and the condenser is necessary to counteract the effect of this.

UNCLE SAM'S BOOK.

The demand for an elementary book on radio has been so great that the United States Bureau of Standards has prepared a book on the subject. It is called "The Principles Underlying Radio Construction." There are 619 pages of elementary electricity, dynamo-electric machinery, radio circuits, apparatus for reception and transmission, description of vacuum tubes, and many other things.

These books are procurable from the government printing office, Washington, D. C., in return for $1. Do not send stamps.

This Being Kissed by Wireless Appears to Be Pleasant

MARION HANDLEY.

As she was snapped just after receiving an osculatory record over one of the Boston American's free radiophone sets.

KISSES CAN BE SENT OVER RADIOPHONE

Come on, girls, get your kisses by wireless.

They're more sanitary that way.

Miss Marion Handley of No. 1174 Boylston street, with one of the Boston American free radio sets, was able to get a kiss by wireless.

You can get one, too. That is to say, you can get a free set, too.

The man in charge of the free radio sets announces himself as happy. He and his assistants are being snowed under with questions and applications for subscription blanks. He says he likes it.

There will be enough free sets for everybody, although the demand for them is going to be tremendous. Radio sets are not plentiful in the stores, and are frequently hard to get even when one is willing to pay cash for them.

Think of getting something free that is none too plentiful in the stores? Like giving away 50-pound lots of sugar during a sugar famine.

The Victor supersensitive crystal receiver is regarded as one of the best crystal detector sets on the market. The set is easy of adjustment, does not get out of order easily and is rated as a fifty-mile instrument. Tuning is done by moving a single dial, which simplifies the operation immensely. The only other adjustment is the crystal, which is conveniently located above the dial.

With every receiving set goes a pair of earphones, rated at 2,200 ohm resistance. They are made by the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, one of the largest manufacturers of switchboard apparatus in the world.

The two together constitute a combination of which any radio fan should be proud.

They are free to every one who brings in twenty new subscribers to the Boston American. Full particulars will be given at the Boston American office, first floor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. If you can't come, write or phone Main 5180.

The sooner you start getting the subscriptions the sooner you will have the set. It will be given you just as soon as you bring in the twenty new subscribers.

DO IT TODAY.

$5,000 Maine Fire

Question Box for Radio Fans

Note—Address all communications to Radio Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass. Sign your full name and address, only initials will be printed.

Q.—1—Would this plan work as well as a double slide tuning coil? 2—How far would one phone, (1,000 ohms) and a detector receive?—P. G. G., Waltham.

A.—1—You have not shown the proper connections in your diagram. The switch point should go to the ground instead of the end of the coil as you have shown. You will not get quite as sharp tuning with a tapped tuning coil as with a double slide, but it is good enough for all practical purposes with a crystal detector. 2—About 25 miles.

Q.—Would you please tell me if this is the right wiring for a Boston tune? Please tell me how to wire a three stage amplifier to add to a detector?—S. H. S., Malden.

A.—A variable condenser should be inserted in shunt in secondary circuit. Do not try to amplify with a crystal detector, as I presume this is what you mean. It is possible, but hardly worth the candle. Instead of a three stage amplifier, use two stages of amplification and a vacuum tube detector. Your dealer will show you the wiring.

Q.—How are the taps taken off on a coil? I enclose a diagram of a set I intend to make. What do you think the range ought to be? Would you advise any change in the diagram?—J. M., Rutland.

A.—Wind ten turns of the coil and carry wire to a switchpoint. Wind another ten turns and then to another switchpoint, and so on. Your diagram was a clever one. There is no need of tapping both positive and negative poles of B batteries as you have done. Tap either positive or negative but not both.

Q.—I have a friend who lives about a quarter of a mile away who has no license but has a receiving set. How should I call him when I want to speak to him?—W. S. A., Newport.

A.—I should call him in the usual way, substituting his name for the customary call letters.

Why He Went There

Why will a man walk past several lunch rooms—yes, sometimes past a Waldorf—even when he is in a hurry, and go to a more distant Waldorf Lunch where the food is the same?

For the same reason that we walk on the sunny side of the street. That man puts himself out because he knows that there is a counterman there who waits upon him with such friendly and pleasant courtesy that the food served by him seems to be more appetizing. He feels that he is welcome there—he feels more at home.

Every Waldorf employe is instructed in the high value that the Waldorf System places upon courtesy. Unusual acts of courtesy toward customers, in actual service, are heralded with as much enthusiasm as the public welcomes the opening of the big league games.

"Monte Cristo," at Tremont Temple, Is Proving No Mean Magnet

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

IT IS always a question whether a famous novel or an especially written story is best adapted to films. As the diplomatic judge said, "There's much to be said on both sides." After all, a good story, whether written yesterday or fifty years ago, is a good story and should find no difficulty in entertaining motion picture audiences.

As a matter of fact, "Monte Cristo," the Fox production taken from Alexandre Dumas' famous novel, is proving no mean magnet at Tremont Temple. I saw it there last week for the first time. It is a curious story in that the first half is taken up entirely in setting the scene for the last half, where the action of the piece is centered. From the point where Edmond Dantes, as the Count of Monte Cristo, visits the innkeeper at Marseilles and discovers on whom he must avenge himself, the story becomes truly exciting.

The first half of the picture shows Edmond sent to prison; shows him studying under the old abbe; and shows him make his escape. The second half consists of his wreaking vengeance on his enemies one by one. It is the working out of his schemes that is of the greatest interest.

GILBERT IN TITLE ROLE.

Jack Gilbert, who has been for some time the player on whom Mr. Fox seemed to be pinning his hopes and draping his productions, has the title role of Monte Cristo. He has developed into an excellent player, but by no means an unusual one. While he does very well as Dantes, others could have done, I believe, equally well. He was at his best during the last part of the picture, for he appears more advantageously as a poised, vengeful man than as an eager youth.

Many of the supporting players do uncommonly well. William V. Mong is capital as the inn-keeper, while Ralph Clonninger is especially good as Fernand Montego. There are time when he resembles very much Rodolph Valentino. Estelle Taylor is good though hardly remarkable as Mercedes, while Virginia Faire is extremely beautiful as the Arabian princess, and Maude George does well with the comparatively small role of the baroness Danglars.

The atmosphere of the French prison and the attitude of the people of those times has been well kept in the production, though there is nothing that stands out particularly. "Monte Cristo" is in no way a spectacle; it is a story of revenge and not a particularly pleasant one. There is action in it, and all the scenes have a definite purpose and meaning. It is quite worthwhile.

THE MORALS OF HOLLYWOOD.

THE morals of Hollywood are coming in for so much publicity lately that it seems only reasonable to give Madame Elinor Glyn a little space for her remarks on the subject. Madame Glyn is in New York for a few days before sailing for her home in Paris.

"Hollywood people," she said a few days ago, "have the kindest of hearts in the world. I wish you could see those little girls who get $7.50 a day for being parts of mob or atmosphere and only work occasionally share their clothes and money with others who are 'up against it.'

"The recognized players work all day from 8:30 in the morning until 8 and 9 at night. Where do you suppose they could find time for all the 'wildness' people talk about?

"I think the Arbuckle affair was beastly. Those are the things that can and should be stamped out by the public. Don't support the pictures of the players you cannot respect. Among the stars with whom I worked and whom I saw in their homes only one or two were dope fiends. The majority were honest, hard-working people. Frequently I thought their manners too familiar—but, then I've thought that about New York, too!

"I feel that the Arbuckle and Taylor affairs will make things out there much more quiet. I don't think that the newspapers should keep up their criticism. They have used the stories for their circulation and as a result thousands of people in Hollywood are out of work—not players, but carpenters, electricians, furniture makers, and other workmen necessary to film-making.

"BEAUCAIRE" FOR FAIRBANKS

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE," the Booth Tarkington story, has been bought for Douglas Fairbanks as soon as he finishes work on his "Robin Hood" film. Mr. Tarkington is so enthusiastic over "Doug" as Beaucaire that he has written a new and more colorful beginning to the story especially for the screen production.

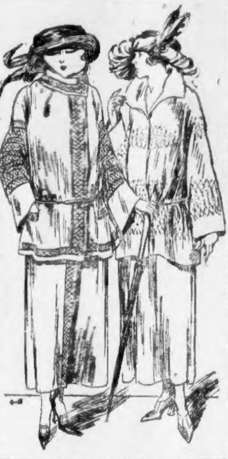
STITCHERY is employed in many colors and designs to trim the simple tailleur of this season. Red kasha cloth, in the straight belted model sketched at left, uses cross stitches and plain lines of beige to trim both coat and skirt. A high, turned-over collar and pockets give a sporting air to the coat, which is girdled with steel beads.



A GENEVIEVE costume of gray covert cloth has little other detail than a design in steel beads, and supplements this with a steel bead and disc girdle. The straight coat, belted lowly, has bell sleeves which are cut in one with its body and a standing collar; the skirt is just a little fuller and a little longer than we expect it to be—which is the way of the recent Paris tailleur.

GAMING SUITS SAY R. I. WHEEL WAS CROOKED

Providence, April 17.—The attorney general of Rhode Island may step into the coming hearings of the gambling suits of $500,000 and $75,000 filed against alleged gamblers who are charged with fleecing a New Bedford lawyer of a fortune, in the expectation that the testimony will reveal Rhode Island honeycombed with gambling dens that have outdone the famous Monte Carlo and out-Canfield the most famous of all gamblers, the late Dick Canfield.

The smallest State in the Union will be silhouetted, it is rumored, as being so infested with luxurious gambling dens that it is known throughout the country as the high-brow gambling centre of the United States.

That gambling cannot exist without protection, and as protection comes high, disclosures may involve prominent officials it is said.

The roulette wheel was operated with an electric "squeeze," it is charged, and losses staggering to the unsuspecting players have been revealed in an affidavit filed by a creditor of the New Bedford attorney, citing 184 occasions when the lawyer is alleged to have lost on an average of $350 an evening—on one night $1,800

At Providence, a suit for $500,000 was filed by Edward T. Bannon, New Bedford attorney, against six alleged operators of gambling houses. The men sued are Frank L. Murray, Jacob I. Vogel and Augustas S. A. Schaller of East Greenwich, John F. Hennessy of East Providence, James E. Moran of Providence, and Charles L. Manchester, Jr., of Auburn. Murray and Hennessy are sued for $100,000 each, the others for $75,000 apiece.

Bannon's losses, which he charges occurred at fashionable Rhode Island places, are made the basis of a suit for $75,000, brought in Taunton by another man. This is possible under a Massachusetts law which permits any person to recover three times the amount lost by gambling provided the loser does not take legal action to recover his money within three months after his loss.

ELLA KOLAR WILL SING HERE

Judging from the reports which preceded the return of Ella Kolar, the mezzo soprano, to the land of her birth, Boston musical devotees are to be congratulated that this talented artist is to make her American debut at Symphony Hall on Friday, April 21, at 8 p. m.

Miss Kolar, whose recent debut in Milan, Italy, proved a revelation of remarkable power, ranging from the lowest notes of the mezzo soprano to the most acute ones of the soprano.

She is endowed with a dramatic expression which has the power to persuade and develop applause, a voice equal and intensive and a figure and personality most pleasing to look upon.

Miss Kolar will be assisted by the Italian Symphony Orchestra, composed of seventy skilled and talented musicians, under the personal direction of Maestro Raffaelo Martino, the noted conductor. She will render several Italian arias and a number of opera selections.

Miss Kolar was born in Chicago, where she first attracted attention as a singer of note. She is the daughter of a Bohemian nobleman.

Inmates of the house smelled gas and investigated. When they found the woman the police were notified. She was sent to the hospital, where a pulmotor was usd. She is expected to recover.

According to the police, the woman turned out the gas before retiring, and in some way left the jet slightly open.

"ELIJAH" GIVEN A REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE

Symphony Hall was filled to overflowing, with many people standing, yesterday afternoon for the last concert of the season of the Handel-Haydn Society. The presentation was Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and it was by far and away the best thing that the chorus has given during the current year.

SOLOISTS PROMINENT.

Conductor Mollenhauer had for his soloists Florence Hinkle, soprano; Delphine March, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor, and Norman Jollif, bass. As usual H. G. Tucker was at the organ and played beautifully all the music which, in this case was a great deal, that was assigned to him.

Four more thoroughly delightful soloists could scarcely have been found. The voices of Paul Althouse and Florence Hinkle are too well known and loved here to need further comment. They both sang exceptionally well.

Mr. Jollif and Miss March, who are not, perhaps, so well known, developed voices of very enjoyable quality. Miss March was unfortunate in one instance in failing to follow perfectly the intention of the conductor, but throughout the remainder of her work everything was so satisfactory that the audience quickly forgot it.

GOOD WORK BY CHORUS.

The chorus did splendid work—even better than usual, which is brief, but high, praise. Mr. Mollenhauer should be greatly gratified at the results which he obtained on this occasion. It was only fitting that the large audience applauded him to the echo.

To the man who is on his feet all day

STANDING or walking all day long on hard floors and pavements is an unnatural strain.

The human foot was designed for soft dirt paths. Under modern conditions even the strongest physique suffers.

Of course hard leather heels give no relief. Ordinary rubber heels are little better. Some are soft, crumbly rubber that wears down quickly—others are so hard and lifeless that you might as well wear leather.

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels give you perfect protection. They combine just the right toughness for long hard wear with the greatest amount of springiness.

You'll never know how much a real shock-absorber can help you in your work until you wear O'Sullivan's. The strain of standing—the jar of walking—O'Sullivan's absorb them both.

The price of O'Sullivan's to you is generally the same as the price of ordinary heels, in spite of the fact that O'Sullivan's cost the dealer more. Your repairman could make a bigger immediate profit on any one of half a dozen substitutes—but when he puts on O'Sullivan's, he knows you'll bring trade to him again.

Ask for O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels when you leave your shoes—see that they are attached. The O'Sullivan Heel Company.

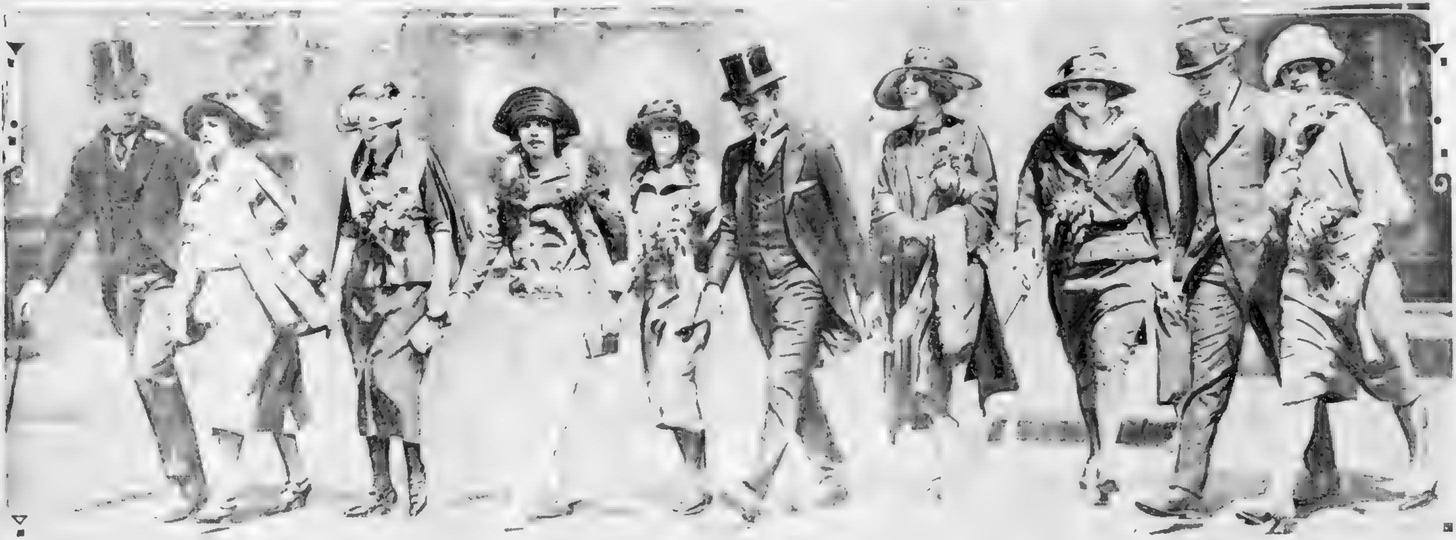
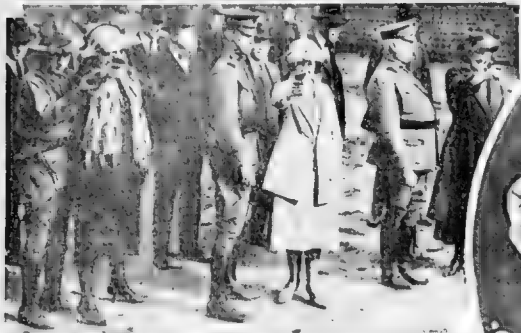
BOSTON'S SMART EASTER PARADE A PAGEANT OF LOVELINESS



LOVELY STYLES AND LOVELIER WOMEN marked the most gorgeous Easter parade Boston has ever witnessed—a multi-colored pageant to the Goddess of Fashion. And the cost? ask Dad, he knows! Pink lipped flappers crowded Commonwealth avenue to dim in splendor the modes of matrons—but mother held her own! Caress your eye with this colorful procession of wealth and daintiness that swarmed "the avenue" from churchtime until nightfall. Old Sol poured soothing rays down to lure forth vari-colored silk hosiery and shimmering satins. And the colors almost put the sun to shame for there was canary, purple and vermilion, periwinkle blue, mimosa yellow, jade green, delicate pinks and a riot of pastels. The skirts, too, had their ups and downs, but Paris is having her day, and longer skirts prevailed. Russian boots, French slippers and English shoes, encased in good old shapely American feet, were all in evidence. Style and cut in gowns and suits were just as varied as the colors. Grandma, wearing a bird of a chapeau, flapped along with the crowd as jauntily as her flapper granddaughter. As for father—he "was among those present" with his conventional silk topper and cutaway. The paraders favored "a little something around them," as a rule, for girdles were much in evidence. Furs were also conspicuous. Altogether it was a dear, dizzy, delightful and daring Easter escapade. Salaam Dame Fashion!



OH SHOOT! Boston's fair bank clerks have been invited to set aside their powder puffs for a little real powder and become experts in marksmanship as a protection against bank robbers. ## B. C. NINE IS OUT TO SCORE 4 VICTORIES THIS WEEK

With four games on the card for this week, the Boston College baseball squad is all primed to annex four more victories to the list. Before starting for the South, where three games will be played, the Maroon and Gold nine will play Vermont at Alumni Field on Wednesday afternoon.

The first stop on the way south will be at Providence. There the B. C. team will play Providence College. The Providence College nine ought not to offer the Eagles too much opposition, and it is likely that Coach Henriksen will use either Lashway or McKenna, two promising young twirlers, against the Rhode Islanders.

On Thursday, Boston College will play Villanova at Villanova, Pa. On the return trip the Maroon and Gold nine will play Fordham at New York.

Mullowney May Do Duty in the Box

Mullowney, the big southpaw of Henriksen's staff, may make his initial appearance on the Southern trip. Mullowney's arm has not been in condition to do any pitching for the past week, but it is expected that his arm will soon be able to deliver the customary bafflers.

Jimmy Kelley is another star twirler of the Maroon and Gold staff who has not yet been used. Kelley is in better form this season than ever, and Coach Henriksen is saving him until his team has a little stiffer opposition than has been offered by either Middlebury or Northeastern.

Judging from the form displayed by the Boston College team in the first two games the Maroon and Gold nine is headed toward the top of the college baseball lists. The infield quartet is working in perfect unison, combining speed with accuracy. It would be difficult to find a better first sacker than Captain Jocko Halligan.

Halligan has taken everything that has come his way without a slip-up. With the willow, "Jocko" is no novice, and can "hit them where they ain't" when needed.

Cody has done himself credit both at his place at second and at the plate. Dowd is another second sacker with plenty of ability, and may play at second part of the time this week.

"Sonny" Foley is not disappointing at third. He is fast and accurate on the field, and plays in a manner that justifies Coach Henriksen's opinion of him as being a born ball player. To watch him play would lead to the conclusion that the diamond was "Sonny's" natural home.

Patten and Vargas did very pleasing work in the first two games. Patten is a new man on the B. C. twirling staff whose worth was not well known. In the game against Middlebury, Patten held the visitors to but three hits and passed a single man. He is a hard hitting pitcher, nicking the horsehide three times out of five, one of his clouts being good for three bases.

WHICH MAN WILL WIN THE MARATHON?

Map of the course over which [illegible] distance runners will battle in B. A. A. classic

LEWIS TO SHOW HIS FAMOUS HEADLOCK

"Strangler" Ed Lewis, head-lock artist supreme and present wearer of the world's heavyweight wrestling crown, comes to the Arena on Wednesday night prepared for the battle of his life, when he faces Dick Daviscourt, the rugged and clever Texan grappler, who tossed Lewis and Zbyszko about as if they were sacks of meal in his matches here with both men a few months ago.

GEORGE V TUOHEY

True, both of the Texan's opponents came through winners, but in each case it was after some of the hardest wrestling Boston had ever seen, in which Daviscourt more than held his own until the greater experience of the Pole and of the Strangler enabled them to trap the enthusiastic giant and send him down to defeat.

Since that time Daviscourt has been steadily winning in all parts of the West. He has tossed star after star, gaining in the experience he needed and also increasing his own confidence in his ability to eventually defeat the very men who had previously defeated him.

He jumped at the chance to get the return engagement with the "Strangler" and those who watched them battle before know that Lewis is due for another rather stiff session, even if he does not meet defeat. Daviscourt has all the attributes that enter into the make-up of a champion. He has weight, power, skill, courage, a fine set of wrestling brains. He has confidence without being swell headed.

He feels that he is the coming champion and figures that as he improves the other fellows are slipping. This is sound reasoning and makes Dick's followers agree with him that he has the best chance of any man now in the game of coming through on top of the whole tribe of heavies.

Lewis and Daviscourt will go to a positive finish, best two out of three falls, American Association rules to govern.

Not content with this as the main event, Promoter Tuohey, always looking for new faces, trots out Andreas Castano, the Spanish heavyweight, whose work in the recent tournament at Paris was such as to induce him to make an American tour. Castano takes on Renato Gardini, the Italian, who is always colorful in his work and whose ability to finish quickly has been so marked of late. In fact, the Italian sets such a pace that he will either win quickly or give his opponent the merriest kind of a session.

RUSSELL FORD WILL COACH AT MINNESOTA

Minneapolis, April 17.—Russell Ford, formerly of the Yankees, will coach the University of Minnesota nine the coming season. A large squad is out daily for this branch, which was recently restored as a major sport.

PETER FOLEY, 70 WILL RUN IN MARATHON

Peter Foley of Winchester, who reaches his seventieth milestone tomorrow, will celebrate that event after his unique fashion of more than a score of years—namely, by running the Ashland to Boston marathon.

Peter was missing from the list of starters last year, but it would appear he simply was saving up his energies for a supreme effort this year.

"Will you kindly publish a few lines in your paper," writes Peter, "to let my friends know that I intend to follow the runners in on the 19th. I wish to celebrate my seventieth birthday in my own way of doing things.

"I am feeling fine and, conditions being favorable, expect to finish the distance [illegible]

And [illegible] old guy with spinach on his chin, but a clean-shaven chap that can travel a damn sight faster than thousands that are years younger.

Be it remembered that Peter, although not an official entry in the B. A. A. race of 1920, and starting a full minute after the eight five [illegible] entered in the race, was the twenty-eighth to cross the finish line that year despite his sixty-eight years, and he covered the distance in the fastest time he has yet traveled it.

HAGUE AND CURRIE IN BIG TUSSLE AT SALEM

The next show by the Naumkeag A. A. of Salem will be on Wednesday afternoon at 2.15.

Cast Iron Billy Hague of New Bedford will meet Joe Currie of New Haven in the main bout of ten rounds. Frankie Ryan of Everett and Young Kansas will clash in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Bob Ambrose of Cambridge vs. Scotty Fobbs, six rounds and Young Siegal vs. Danny Bond in the opening six rounds.

DARTMOUTH HAS 23 FRAT NINES IN LEAGUE

Hanover, N. H., April 17.—Interfraternity baseball for the championship of Dartmouth will start April 24. Twenty-three fraternities have entered teams in the championship series, which will last until the first of May.

Kappa Kappa Kappa, which won the championship last year, will be represented by a strong team again. Players on varsity and freshmen baseball squads are not eligible for fraternity teams.

ARLINGTON OPENS AT HYDE PARK WEDNESDAY

The Arlington High School nine will open its season on Patriots' Day morning, playing Hyde Park High at Hyde Park.

Saturday afternoon the Arlington outfit will play its first home game with Boston Trade School on the Spy Pond Athletic Field, Arlington.

ZUNA PICKED TO SET TERRIFIC PACE

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

THE annual emulation of Phidippides takes place Wednesday. Phidippides, called "Dippy" by those who knew him best, achieved his niche in the hall of fame 2,412 years ago by reason of a scamper of twenty-five miles or so from the Plains of Marathon to the ancient city of Athens, and in their efforts to prevent "Dippy" from hogging all the glory, athletes ever since his day have been demonstrating that running twenty-five miles or so isn't such a much.

The Boston Athletic Association, in answer to a growing demand for opportunity to run twenty-five miles or so started staging an annual marathon run twenty-six years ago, and Wednesday brings that event around once more.

It is run over a course laid out between the town of Ashland and the B. A. A. clubhouse on Exeter street, Boston, and in its course proceeds through Ashland, South Framingham, Natick, Wellesley Hills, Wellesley, Newton Lower Falls, Lake Street Transfer Station, Coolidge Corner, Brookline, and thence via Beacon street, Commonwealth avenue, and Exeter street to the finish line.

Competitors Have Starred in Other Marathons.

Time was when every athlete and his kid brother entered the race, and the group of starters often totalled well over the 100 mark. But of late years the bulk of the competitors have been proved marathon runners and the entries limited to seventy or less.

This year finds seventy-four names on the list, but the number of high-class performers is far greater than ever before, and that the race will prove the most thrilling, with possibly the lowering of the record as an added feature, is the opinion of those who have studied the entry list and taken stock of the past records of the men.

An idea of the quality of the field is indicated in the announcement that five former winners of the B. A. A. event including the man who set the existing record for the event, are included in the array which has signified its intention to trot once more the gruelling course.

The record holder is Frank Zuna of the Paulist A. C., New York, who last year traveled the distance in the remarkable time of two hours, 18 minutes, 57 3-5 seconds. He, together with Peter Trivoulides of the Millrose A. C., New York, winner of the race two years ago; Carl Linder of Quincy, now wearing the colors of the B. A. A., winner in 1919; Bill Kennedy, another New Yorker, winner of the 1917 race, and Clarence DeMar of Dorchester, former record holder and winner of the event in 1911, comprise the former first place winners entered in Wednesday's race.

There are many others of almost equal strength and note among the [illegible] Chuck Mellor of the Logan Square A. C., Chicago, three times winner of the Auto City marathon, and the man who finished second in the B. A. A. race last year; Sydney Hatch, the Middle West champion for many years; Willie Kyronen of the Millrose A. C., New York, winner of the Evening Mail marathon before the war, who finished seventh in the B. A. A. event last year and was second to Arthur Roth in the 1916 B. A. A. race; William Ritola, metropolitan cross country champion; Otto Laakso, another Millrose runner, who finished eighth last year, and many others will be found battling for honors on Wednesday.

Foreign Countries to be Represented in Classic.

Nationally and internationally the list is the most representative recorded in the twenty-six years of the event. East, West and South, all have their distance stars entered in the race, and the foreign countries represented include Canada, Italy, Greece, Finland and France.

With five former winners and so many who have made records almost as impressive venturing to forecast the winner is a task few will assume and fewer will get right.

Quite naturally Frank Zuna, winner last year and present record holder will be the favorite in the wagering, but whether Zuna can duplicate his 1921 effort is a big question. Only once, and then in the very early days of American marathon running has a winner of the B. A. A. event been able to repeat his victory.

J. J. Caffery of Hamilton, Ontario, was the one man to accomplish this, for after winning the 1900 race in two hours, 39 minutes, 44 2-5 seconds, he came back again in 1901 and knocked ten minutes off that record. Since his time almost every winner has sought to duplicate his effort, and while many have come mighty close to doing so—finishing second, third or fourth in some instances—none but Caffery has won two B. A. A. first prizes.

But with five former winners starting the race this week, chances of one of the five coming through with victory are multiplied.

The start is made at Steven's Corner, Ashland at 12 o'clock, noon on Wednesday, and the first man will cross the finish line between 2.15 and 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

DOLPHIN LAUNCHED IN RECORD TIME

With but five weeks elapsed from the time the keel was laid until she was launched, one of the speediest post-war shipbuilding jobs was completed when the Dolphin, a steel cruising yacht, was launched at the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. yesterday.

The Dolphin was built for a New York man, and is similar to the Nourmahal, owned by Rear Commodore Vincent Astor. She has fuel capacity for a 6,000-mile cruise. She is 180 feet in length over all, 24 feet wide and draws nine feet of water. She will be commissioned in June.

SCARBORO CLUB READY FOR BIG YEAR

By FRED G. THAYER.

The temporary closing of the Scarboro golf course for the past fortnight has not dampened the enthusiasm of its officers and directors one whit, for at a meeting held Tuesday last at the Refectory, which is used as the Scarboro clubhouse, it was decided that definite action would soon be taken to bring the standard of this first municipal golf course in America to the level in keeping with traditions of historic Boston.

[illegible] of securing [illegible]

[illegible] the hearts of those who are in sympathy with the municipal golf movement that it would not be long before public indignation would reach that pitch where something definite would be accomplished.

Boston First City to Have Golf Course

Therefore, to show that Scarboro is on the map a challenge is going forward to all outside municipal golf clubs to meet the former's best representatives in inter-city or [illegible] sectional contests, the teams to be composed of three [illegible] To use the words of the [illegible] secretary who has done [illegible] fame to Scarboro than any other individual, George Ad[illegible] [illegible] Ancient pastime within the reach of everybody and establish the true terminology of municipal golf in Boston."

The effort of this committee should meet with considerable success and any team which they are capable of assembling from the talent available would give competing combinations all they cared to tackle in the way of high class golf before the match was over.

Boston was the first city in America to have a golf course and the first American professional in America, Willie Campbell, held his first berth at the public links of Boston back in 189[illegible] [illegible] wife succeeded her husband in the same capacity upon the death of the latter for five years, but that does not signify that the germ which he helped to sow has been totally crushed, for evidences are many of this big growth, although other cities which copied our example have now outstripped us, to wit: Chicago which is now completing its tenth municipal golf playgrounds.

Why can't we bring Boston on a par with the other cities of the land?

This has been the best city in the land to exploit professional and amateur baseball [illegible] why shouldn't the proper kind of effort result in the more extensive development of golf? It has been said that there are over [illegible] golfers in Massachusetts, but this estimate refers to those who are actively affiliated with some club or who are playing at the game on various courses whenever the opportunity permits. However, there are at least twice that many who really are golfers, but half of [illegible] not rated because they are [illegible] listered from a regular [illegible] club. They are back yard [illegible] If we want to build up our [illegible] morally and physically, we must give him more opportunity to enjoy clean, healthful exercise. The brain cannot properly function if the body is sluggish.

RED SOX OPEN BIG SERIES WITH CHAMPION NEW YORK CLUB

BABE RUTH SEES GAME FROM FENWAY BOX

TODAY'S BASEBALL WINNERS

The Braves, Oeschger pitching, to beat the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds.

The Yankees to beat the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park.

By NICK FLATLEY

Can the Red Sox finish in the first division? You'll have a pretty good idea of the answer to that after the series that opens with the champion Yankees today is rolled up in the mothballs.

The owners of [illegible] ger about for [illegible] Babe Ruth [illegible] watch [illegible] from [illegible] seat in [illegible] row [illegible] invaders [illegible] affairs [illegible] are not so good. Manager Huggins [illegible] pured by Carl Mays and other temperamental stars of the Broadway troupe. But the players want to win, because they want to [illegible] post-season coin in the World's Series, and all little differences are forgotten once the pitchers start warming up.

SCOTT

The Yanks will play [illegible] on the [illegible] are [illegible] these [illegible] season games because they know [illegible] Cleveland, Washington and St. Louis clubs all are pennant dreaming.

Smart, Aggressive Ball Will Beat Yankees

So when the Sox assault them the real [illegible] of the native team will come out. The Yanks can be beaten by smart, aggressive baseball, and if the Duffy pappas have that commodity and use it they can step off properly for a good season.

A poor start doesn't mean much in a baseball race. The [illegible] dropped two games out of three to the Athletics [illegible] of the [illegible] 1914. Then, too, it must be remembered [illegible] here.

The [illegible] have raised [illegible] and again [illegible] the Fenway [illegible] Sox, after [illegible] have returned to [illegible] the owners of high places.

To many a [illegible] of Yanks and Red Sox looms like a battle of the [illegible] prepared [illegible] ball park.

Every [illegible] Sox [illegible] was [illegible] here that [illegible] ception for he has always [illegible] hero in the days of the old champions, as well as [illegible] of disintegration and things like that.

Red Sox in Poor Shape For Important Series

And, of course, the most prominent [illegible] local idol, and is still looked on as a native product by the faithful fan who refuses to be discouraged this Spring until results show what's going to be what.

The Red Sox aren't in the best shape for a big series right now. Dugan will take a fortnight to work himself into real form; several of the pitchers haven't yet found their stuff; the varsity lineup isn't determined, but it's fifty-fifty at that.

Ruth and Meusel, the big hitters of the hostile outfit, have still some thirty odd days of suspension ahead of them, and the champions are in just as tough a way as the unsettled Duffys.

Great pitching, it is figured, will escort the Yankees to another pennant. [illegible] the league has a bunch of sharpshooters comparable to the [illegible] the New Yorkers drew from [illegible]. The champions are [illegible] to handle, and it's doubtful [illegible] the Huggins horde will ever be able to pull together long enough to play title ball over an extended period.

Any [illegible] is going to need a lot of pitching against the Red Sox. That team may be weak in the field but it has very imposing artillery. Looks like one of the best hitting squads in the league, and the boys will always hammer away at the apple no matter what's happening in the field or in the clubhouse or anywhere else.

* * *

From the way Joe Harris has pursued fly balls to date it's hard to see where he can qualify as a regular outfielder, but from the way he swings at the apple it's a cinch that not many pitchers will fool him much. Joseph bids fair to be one of those problems that will keep Manager Duffy from getting too much sleep during the next few months.

* * *

Ol' Jack Quinn and Bennie Karr have shown a pair of very good pitching efforts, and if the two men can keep it up, Herbie Pennock and the rest of the flock will easily provide enough sharp shooting to keep the mound records up to the average.

First Baseball Death of the Year

Milledgeville, Ga., April [illegible]—Wyatt Davenport, center fielder on the Georgia Military College baseball team, died here yesterday from injuries received in a game on April 8. Davenport collided with another member of his team while attempting to catch a ball, suffering a concussion of the brain. He never regained consciousness.

CONWAY PICKS MALONE AND TRAVERS TO WIN

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Malone's mighty left may give him a victory over Pat Walsh at the Carlyle A. C.'s show at the Grand Opera House tonight.

Mickey Travers, New England's featherweight sensation, will dispose of Jimmy Cooney of Holyoke this evening.

[illegible]

Malone, Very Naturally, Will Bank on His Left Hand

Jack Malone will bank on his famous left hand to turn the tide of battle in his favor. St. Paul's welterweight ace does not believe there is a fighter in this land of the brave anywhere near his poundage who can squeeze by his left. He even believes he can give away ten pounds or so to Johnny Wilson, middleweight boss, and still left hand his way to victory.

Maybe Malone will receive a surprise tonight, as Walsh is a regular [illegible] Malone.

Walsh is intent upon securing a shot at Nate Siegal. He believes that the best way to accomplish this result is by winning over the St. Paul warrior tonight.

The Buick [illegible] will have [illegible] with a few exceptions. Among the new players [illegible] Joe Plumer, shortstop, formerly of Jersey City [illegible] third base, formerly of Worcester [illegible] King, outfielder, formerly with Fitchburg and [illegible] who last year pitched twenty-five games and lost but four.

The Buick team intends to give the people of Brighton [illegible] ball during the coming season and [illegible] Rogers Park, Brighton.

BOSTON "Y."

The Boston Y. M. C. A. baseball team is to use the old American League grounds for its games and practice, and with them any contests now being planned will have a bus [illegible] Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday games are planned. An unusually large squad of players is [illegible] to place on the team, and the squad will receive its first [illegible] on Saturday. Local business house teams wishing twilight games are requested to get in touch with the Y baseball director.

DALLAS A. C.

The Dallas A. C. of Roxbury, owing to a cancellation, are without a game for the afternoon of April 19 and would like to hear from an fifteen-year-old uniformed team in Boston. Home game wanted. Call Rox. [illegible] between 7 and 8 p. m. Ask for Burke.

OESCHGER OUT TO TAME GIANTS

New York, April 17.—Big Joseph Oeschger was due to represent Fred Mitchell on the pitching peak at the Polo Grounds today, and it might be worth mentioning that the large chap was just about ready to chalk up his first victory of the season. Joseph lost the other day at Philly and it's not often in his scheme of things to drop two in a row.

Like the other Brave pitchers, the Quaker Bandbox ball [illegible] the huge Californian was shy of control. That was due mostly to too careful pitching as the batters over there are so close to the platter that the hurlers use undue efforts to feed bad balls to the hitters. Here on the big orchard the sharpshooters can cut loose and it might be mentioned that if they do not F. Mitchell will soon be more or less batty.

Mitch Knows He Has Real Ball Club

Mitch knows that he has a good ball club, and its no pleasant sensation for him to stand on the side lines and watch said club get trounced. Whatever goes up comes down, however, and the luck is due to shift the way of the Braves very shortly. It hasn't been with them at all yet, to hear the boys talk.

For instance, Sunday at the Polo Grounds, the Boston entry socked the ball much harder than the Vamps, but it didn't get them anywhere. Either the onion flashed straight at somebody, or there was one of those [illegible] plays and [illegible] a whole lot in the [illegible] of averages.

Barbare May Get Another Chance

Manager Mitchell is all ready to do a bit of shifting as several of his athletes aren't hitting the ball as they should. He took Holke out to let Barbare hit yesterday, and then stuck Dinty on first, even though the utility hero is limping badly as a result of a foul tip that he bounced off one of his toes.

Mister Barbare made one fine play in the inning that he worked and hit a powerful line drive at Young on his only swing so he may brace things up a little while Holke is recovering the swatting optic.

Ford, not hitting either, was also yanked out and Christenbury coaxed in to play the bag. The latter isn't within a hundred miles of Hornsby as a fielder but as a hitter he's one of the very best. If he could scoop them up he'll be sure of a job until his whiskers got tangled up with his spikes. And anyhow, he's likely to have a fling at it now.

Shufflin' Phil Douglas, hero of the world's series, was billed to heave against the Braves, and that meant trouble, as the old boy is in good shape as he showed by winning his first start under wraps. From the way this series started, the Braves and Giants are going to have a lot of fun scrapping each other 'ere October blows along.

THREE SCHOOL PITCHERS STAND OUT BEST

By FRED C. LANE

The opening of the two largest schoolboy baseball leagues, the Suburban and North Shore, on Patriots Day, will usher in what promises to be the biggest season of its kind. This official opening has been looked forward to by thousands of schoolboys throughout the State, who have been limbering up their arms for more than a month for this big day.

The [illegible] performances of some of [illegible] teams assure a successful season. [illegible] of all players has been extraordinary [illegible] who have turned in splendid performances.

It is admitted that [illegible] who have inscribed [illegible] on the roll of honor so early have had experience. But [illegible] were expected so early in the season.

Locke and Nolan Stand Out Above Other Pitchers

"Lefty" Locke of Dorchester High and Barney Nolan of Concord stand out above all other pitchers to date. Locke had the Groton team, which usually proves a troublesome customer to handle, eating out of his hand. In the nine innings that he twirled fourteen strike-outs were recorded.

So well did his curves break at the end of the game that had the contest gone into extra innings this [illegible] would have to [illegible] larger. The same story can be told of Barney Nolan, who chalked up fifteen strike-outs against the Allen Military School.

John Harwood of Brookline, although not accomplishing such a good strike-out record as those two, turned a trick that few pitchers donning a schoolboy uniform are able to accomplish.

Performance Against B. C. High Deserves Much Praise

To hold the hard hitting Boston College nine to three scattered hits and cause seven to fan the breeze is an achievement that is deserving of much praise. The game was lost to the Lage Juniors by the close score of 3 to 2, but through no fault of Harwood, who pitched like never before.

All this was accomplished against the invincible Bill Fallon, who was rated as the best schoolboy hurler in scholastic ranks last year. The Brookline batters gathered eight hits from his offerings, but were inclined to err at the wrong moment.

It was such an error by Londerner, who is usually a reliable player, that caused the Brookline team to lose its game. The work of Phillips, Hopkins and Chase for Brookline stood out.

Though defeated Coach Carroll is pleased to know that such a valuable pitcher is in his squad of ball tossers. With "Big" Ed Mullowney, who cut his niche pitching last season, Brookline is well fixed for boxmen.

North Shore League Fight Promises to Be Close

The North Shore League fight for premier honors this season promises to be the closest in years. What is really causing much comment in the seashore towns is the possibility of Lynn English winning the championship for the third successive year.

It is doubtful if such will happen this season, since Lynn English has lost such valuable boys as "Dodo" Frazier, "Big" Art Ray, "Pooch" Garrity and Bobby Fransen, all mentioned as all-scholastic material by those in authority in this section.

Peabody, Beverly, Lynn Classical, Marblehead and Revere, all have strong teams with which to enter this year's scrap. Coach Sexton, who handles the champions, has a raft of material with which to plug up these open gaps but none can compare with the lost players.

"Buck" Burke, playing the shortstop [illegible] is a valuable asset for any [illegible] Although [illegible] on the diamond, has been [illegible] Cornet [illegible] semi-pro teams [illegible] State.

The Action So Far

Dr. Str[illegible], inventor and p[illegible] [illegible] in a quiet little settlement in the mountains with his daughters, Alix and Cherry, and his niece Anne who keeps house for him. Peter [illegible], young man [illegible] has long been in love with Cherry but has never told her. Cherry marries Martin Lloyd, a newcomer, and Anne weds Justin Little. Peter declares he is going abroad.

("Sisters," the story by Kathleen Norris, has been made into a motion picture by International Service, Inc., direction of Albert Capellani, scenario by E. Lloyd Sheldon. It is released by American Releasing Corporation.)

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

SOMEHOW the attitude of her [illegible] would [illegible] long [illegible] to [illegible] the complement of [illegible] happiness? Alix thought of [illegible] and being loved as a state where wordly considerations had no place. Cherry's complaint about Milltown and its deadly lonesomeness she regarded as a bad symptom; she couldn't know that the doctor had sent Cherry home, there would be [illegible] now.

[illegible] root of all evil [illegible] she had to consider now. It cost [illegible] and she rather [illegible] with never [illegible] the cost of things before [illegible] of supply was [illegible] the stars and nothing but a [illegible]

And here was the [illegible] the catastrophe had arrived, she had an example of what Anne would do when it came to a decision between money and what she owed to the dear old man who was gone.

"Let the devil take the hindmost," was written all over the greedy [illegible] of Justin Little [illegible] her share and had taken besides [illegible] thousand dollars [illegible] would take it when the settlement came.

Alix felt a sort of nausea; reflected that perhaps the lesson was cheap even at that exorbitant [illegible] and longed for Peter more than ever.

Like a Line of Ghosts

[illegible] no most of them [illegible] the doctor had left a fortune. Alix wisely did not enlighten them.

The house would have to be sold, its contents auctioned and the proceeds split three ways. The lawyer donated his services out of regard for his old friend.

With Alix he went over the [illegible] from which the doctor had enjoyed a royalty of so many [illegible] was about to expire. In a few months it would be anybody's property. Had the doctor in his frantic search for an improvement foreseen poverty when he was too old to practice?

"Oh, no, no," cried his daughter when the lawyer voiced the idea. "He was not old—father might have lived to be a hundred, but he would never have been old."

[illegible]

"Domestic science?" He suggested it seriously.

"I'm afraid I'd never be much of a success at that," she smiled a bit reminiscently. "No, it will have to be something different."

"You don't have to hurry—take your time—look around and we [illegible] the house and get a [illegible] some of the rich people who [illegible] to come up here for the Summer. Maybe we can get a [illegible] the just the sort of [illegible] of them will like."

"A[illegible] think I'd better keep Dinah for a while?"

"[illegible] can't stay here [illegible]—let things go on the same and if there's any trouble from Little I think I know a kink or two that will settle him."

So Alix resumed her old way of living, took the long walks she was used to, revisited the torrent where Peter had laid bare his heart and wondered who the magic woman was who had jilted him.

Wondered how any girl could jilt Peter, made no attempt to disguise from herself that she missed him with a feeling that was deeper and deeper—talked to Buckey about him, [illegible] dreaming of him many a night while Dinah talked on unheard.

The weeks passed. Letters from Cherry grew more and more frequent. Their tone was not that of the happy bride; in every line Alix read dissatisfaction, on every page unrest.

Listening to the Rain

Autumn came with its scented winds and the challenge of colors. Rain drenched the valleys, the streams leaped into cataracts. To [illegible] there was something eerie about the Fall; she insisted on [illegible] the house fast and setting a light in the sitting-room window to keep the ghosts away.

It was there before the fire that Alix sat and listened to the patter of the rain—the loneliest sound on earth; the most companionable sound on earth, according to mood and time.

The negress burst in with her eyes rolling: "I declare, Miss Alix, I done see a ghost; he's a-knockin', a-knockin'——"

"Nonsense, Dinah! nonsense!"

"No nonsense. Listen—jist you lissen, Miss Alix."

Alix got to her feet. Sure enough there was a sound—a sound of steps, as though someone were prowling about.

"An' I see his face a-peerin' at the window."

"Be still, Dinah! Give me the lamp——"

"What you doin', Miss Alix? Oh, lawsa massy, I ain't seen such [illegible], goin' to meet a ghost."

[illegible] with eyes full of anguish [illegible] walked to the front door and called:

"What do you want?"

A wild howl from Buckey. "Be still, Buckey, be still!" But she was glad the dog was there; glad the intruder knew it.

But for once Buckey was deaf to all commands. With a wild spring he leaped for the door barking with [illegible] manifestations of excitement.

"[illegible]," rumbled the affrighted negress, "he ain't 'fraid of nothin'."

Alix opened the door. A muffled figure burst in, brushing past her, threw off a raincoat, shook himself and called out.

"Hello, people! I'm back." And Buckey, leaping, howling, licked at his coat and made the nearest effort to speaking a welcome that a dog can make.

"[illegible] Peter," said the girl [illegible] kissed each other. "By George, Alix, old pal, it's good to see you again——"

"Peter—Peter," said the girl on the verge of tears. "You're back."

"Back, old lady—back—and how's the doctor—came right to you for news—didn't want any secondhand stuff."

"Sit down, Peter, dear—you don't know, do you—he's gone——"

[illegible] there was nothing [illegible] you been doing?"

"Just as you see me, living here alone."

MANNERS have changed, not men and women. Not humans. Civilization changes her robes from dark to bright; and sometimes back to dark again—but generally [illegible] pressing troubles we like to think that from age to age and from century to century her robes grow lighter and gayer.

Civilization changes her robes, but the lover and his sweetheart do not change their skins, their hearts, or their phrases. [illegible] and I betcha just about the same thing that lovers did when the world first emerged from [illegible] not what strange chaos.

Men gathered and gossiped [illegible] as they do now, on the first primitive street corners. Women were late, getting their crowns just right to go to the circus with their husbands, just as they are [illegible]. Girls in excited knots chattered like a [illegible] sparrows and shrieked, "My dear, I [illegible] DIE!" at King Arthur's court just as they do now in any divan, or tearoom corner.

Guenivere did not say, Well, if that isn't the cat's [illegible]. But she had a very good parallel proverb [illegible] she caught her long sleeves on a knight's [illegible] Launcelot was late.

As sure as anything, before [illegible] a lover did not see [illegible] whom all the other girls and his own girl thought just too wonderful for mere words!

A CONQUERING SPIRIT

HOW MUCH CAN YOU ENDURE?

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE is an old legend that [illegible] who ever slept on Lycorea, one of the two summits of Mount Parnassus, became either inspired or mad.

The meaning of this legend has always seemed to me to be merely this.

When it comes to a difficult test the strong will come out inspired with new strength and powers, while the weak will lose what little [illegible] sanity and [illegible]

[illegible] a woman [illegible] but most of [illegible] her own [illegible] own way of meeting her [illegible] she has never flung back her head and come out to grapple with difficulty. But instead lowering her head sadly, she has looked down contemplating her own misfortunes.

Look Ahead

Perhaps if she had once looked ahead and tried to solve her own problems they would have been conquered. But she has always waited for things to work [illegible] some miracle to bring her happiness for what she feels is a square deal.

Suppose a coward slept in a [illegible] reputed to be haunted. Is [illegible] And the fact that they were conjured up by his imagination wouldn't make them any the more endurable or any the less terrible to deal with. He, like the fabled wretch who slept on Lycorea, would come out of his ordeal mad.

But suppose a man of strength and sanity spent a night in a [illegible] against window panes. But calm sanity would be able to arrive at some explanation for most of the terrifying noises.

More Faith

As we go through life the weak and terrified let each difficulty sap more of energy, more of faith and more of confidence. But the strong, even though they find the fight hard, make it with confidence in the strength they have and the greater strength that will be given them.

"The living sense grows by exercise." And so by enduring and clearing the way sanely man comes into his strength.

After all we are not taxed beyond our strength. Sometimes we think situations are too hard to bear. But almost invariably when we meet them sanely the difficulties slink away.

THE NEED OF SUNSHINE

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

PEOPLE are like plants. [illegible] them in dark places and they wilt and fade and show parasitic infestation. Thus the relationship of lack of sunlight to tuberculosis is very definite.

When the weather is cold and damp, and there is no sunshine, we feel depressed. The rays of the sun influence our mental condition and there are good physiological reasons for this.

When the atmosphere is cold and damp and sunless the functions of the skin are diminished, with a consequent retention of poisonous products. When the atmosphere is sunny and dry the function of the skin is quickened, elimination is facilitated, and there is a sense of well being.

Aside from the physiological effects noted, the rays of the sun are fatal to bacteria. This is why there are fewer infectious diseases, like influenza, when there is much sunlight. The germs of influenza get their chance when the days are dull. The checking of bacterial growth is due to the blue and ultra-violet rays of the sun. The heat itself comes from the red rays.

We need direct sunshine. Glass, for example, excludes the most valuable rays.

To Absorb Freckles And Other Blemishes

USE MERCOLIZED WAX

Every spring numerous inquiries are made by girls seeking some reliable recipe for removing freckles. Very favorable reports have been received from many who have used ordinary mercolized wax during the freckling season. The wax seems to possess unusual properties which completely absorb the freckles, with no harmful effect whatever. The complexion improves wonderfully, becoming as soft as a rose petal and as delicately tinted. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's, spread a thin layer of it over the entire face every night for a week, washing this off in the morning. For rough, spotty skin, sallowness, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and all cutaneous blemishes, this treatment is superior to any other.

READY FOR SUMMER

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

IN a few weeks the housecleaning season will be here, and if the [illegible] hopes to hang new curtains and bedspreads [illegible] warm weather, now is the [illegible] to make these things. Have them in readiness after the heavy [illegible] papering and painting are [illegible].

It is the economy to have summer hangings for one's home, for [illegible] the Winter ones from the dust of open windows, as well as the powerful rays of the Summer sun. And if one is at home all Summer [illegible] more comfortable to have airy, cool hangings than [illegible] floors at [illegible] windows.

There are any number of lovely bedsets you can make when you remove your [illegible]. Among the newest and most inexpensive is a spread of unbleached muslin with a [illegible] border on the edges and on the [illegible]. Dresser scarfs and narrow window [illegible] to match may be made. The stenciling is simple to do, or you may [illegible]

Another [illegible] idea is instead of the stenciling [illegible] cut conventional designs such as flowers or fruits from colored linen or [illegible] and applique them to the [illegible] with black buttonhole twist. Rose chambray on white is attractive, and so is Dutch blue or green, or you may choose an assortment of colors.

To [illegible] table linen you might [illegible] some smart round or square [illegible] cloths of colored linen or chambray hemstitched about an inch from the edge on the square [illegible]. Such colors as [illegible] gray, mauve and green [illegible] and generally go well [illegible]. ## A LITTLE STORY OF FAME AND LOVE

By A. M. Luttrell.

SHE kicked the big velvet floor pillow out of her way. "It's [illegible], I tell you, to have [illegible] this happen at the last [illegible]. Why, I've dreamed [illegible] and worked over the [illegible] here for three [illegible].

"[illegible] I've boasted of my [illegible]. Nobody ever had such [illegible] as John and Hatt[illegible] [illegible]"

[illegible] Reeder regarded his [illegible] little wife indulgently.

"I'm proud of the fact that I married a capable girl, one who can cook, sew, keep a perfect house with or without assistance! [illegible] and I know it."

[illegible] how pictured Dr. [illegible] professional [illegible] with gray hair and [illegible] eyes. Very reserved. And his wife a distant, aloof [illegible] woman whose pleasure would be made or marred by the perfection of service accorded her.

To her amazement there rolled down the Pullman steps the jolliest, fattest, reddest faced little man she had ever seen and he fell upon her husband's neck like a long lost brother. Then a gentle, [illegible] little woman followed. And [illegible] Helen [illegible] than [illegible] Mrs. Hatcher were [illegible] mobile stopped before the comfortable house that she called home.

She and her husband escorted them to the beautiful yellow room facing the east. There she made her little speech. It did not sound like the set speech she had planned. She laughed gaily and told them how she had boasted to friends of the clever way she managed to keep good servants, and then related the calamity.

Little Doctor Hatcher rubbed his hands [illegible]. "It's too good to be true. Get out that gingham apron you brought along, Sallie. Bought it purposely, hoping she would get a chance to use it. You can make the soup for dinner. Noodle soup, dear, like you used to make for me twenty years ago."

The two women went laughing and chatting down the wide polished stairway, through the handsomely furnished hall to the kitchen that was the pride of Helen's heart. Mrs. Hatcher gave one look at the white tiled walls, the spotless linoleum, the blue gingham curtains and the little pots of growing parsley, green against the frosty windows. Then she called her husband: "Jim, do come down a minute!"

He came as fast as his short, fat legs would carry him. "What is it?"

"Look! The kitchen I have been dreaming about all those awful years in the hotel. I am going to have a home again so you can just announce to Will right now your plan to get ready to retire. I am going to have a kitchen just like Helen's."

Then the startling, altogether too good to be true message was out. Doctor Hatcher formally offered Reeder a partnership with the most enviable place in the States for an ambitious young surgeon. "I've been watching you, Will, for years, getting ready for this time, when I knew you would be ready to step into my shoes—and operating gown," he laughed.

And Helen, shamed a little at the memory of her rage, hugged Will. "It's too good, too good, to be really happening to us. What you've dreamed of, a chance in a million. Oh, my dear, I've had a lesson in—Providence." Then she started up warningly. "You men clear out! Quick! The soup will be served in twenty minutes."

Miss Johnson, the New Nurse, Arrives to Take Care of Mrs. Hollingshead, but the Latter Insists That Adelaide Remain Within Call

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

"ADDIE—you do not mind if I call you 'Addie' now, do you?"

"[illegible] what you would," she said, [illegible] back to where she stood.

"Thank you, my dear. I just want to tell you that they are bringing—bringing"— He paused.

"I understand," the girl said. "Dear Mr. Hollingshead, I understand."

"Yes," he went on, "you understand. It will be about 8 o'clock this evening, I believe.

"Will you see that everything—that her room is ready? I am going to order some flowers sent in before they bring—before she comes.

"She always loved flowers," he added, his voice breaking. "Somehow I—I—can't talk to the servants about her—and about her [illegible]. So I thought that perhaps you——"

Adelaide Comforts Him.

She checked him by a pitying gesture. It was almost as if she were going to put her young arms protectingly about him. But instead she laid her hand on his.

"I will attend to everything, dear Mr. Hollingshead," she murmured. "I will give the orders and see myself that everything is arranged—just as if"—with a little sob, "as if it were for my own little sister."

The man could not know that the sob was not for Patricia, but for him. And, perhaps, also, for the thought of Jennie that came to the girl's mind. But it moved him to a swift gratitude.

"My dear! my dear!" he exclaimed, raising her hand to his twitching lips. "What should we do now without you?"

She was in her own room before she remembered that last night she had dreaded his questioning her as to her knowledge of the Sunday trip into West [illegible]. The tragedy had blotted from her mind and from his all comparative trifles as her conspiracy, the deception his children had practiced upon him. The horror of the outcome had cast into shadow all else.

Adelaide took off her dress and put on her wrapper. She had told the servants what to do in their young mistress' room. She knew it would be in spotless order before she, herself, went down to see that all was right. Until then, she could rest.

Throwing herself upon her bed she drew a cover over her tired body and sank immediately into a heavy slumber.

Adelaide Brown was sleeping so heavily that, when there came a knock at her door, she found it difficult to rouse herself.

"Come in!" she called.

Estelle entered. "Miss Brown," she said, "two big boxes of flowers have come. I guess Mr. Hollingshead sent them. Shall I put them in—"

Adelaide understood the [illegible] hesitation. "Yes," she supplemented, "put them in Miss Patricia's room near an open window. I will be down soon to see about them."

In spite of her dazed condition of a minute ago she knew only too well where she was and what had happened. Her watch told her that she had been asleep for two hours. It was late afternoon. Her head felt light.

Going into her bathroom she undressed, took a cold shower and dressed again rapidly. Then she went to the room that had been Patricia's.

That had been! The poor girl whispered the words as she entered the rich girl's room.

It was still Patricia's, she reflected. For the beautiful bod would rest here tonight.

The bed had been made up with fresh linen. A white counterpane had been substituted for the pink satin and lace cover that was usually here. Dressing table and bureau were in perfect order. It was impossible to appreciate that the owner of those silver and gold trinkets would never touch them again.

Jennie Makes a Call

On a table by a window were two florists' boxes. Adelaide opened them. One contained a large bunch of orchids, the other a dozen American Beauty roses.

These were the two kinds of flowers that Patricia Hollingshead had liked best. Her admirers often sent them to her to wear to a dance or other affair.

But today these had been sent by the stricken father. They must be put near the dead girl this evening as she lay on her pretty bed. Just now they would best be left by the open window.

There was nothing more to be attended to here. As Adelaide left the room the butler met her on the hall.

"There is a young lady calling to see you, Miss Brown," he told her. "She says she is your sister."

Jennie! Adelaide's heart gave a glad throb. She had been too much occupied today to send any word to her mother or sister. Somewhere in the back of her mind had been the idea that she would try to get in touch with them this evening.

"I will be right down," she said now to the butler.

In the drawing room Adelaide found her "little sister" standing gazing about her.

Lip-Stick Red

For the past few years, Paris has clung faithfully to black. At the Spring openings of the great Paris dressmakers, however, a revel of new colors was revealed. The costumes of black can never be entirely ousted, of course, but there were many frocks and gowns of biege, dark blue, rust or Havana brown, green, a new bright blue and, brightest of all, "lip-stick red."

In the April number of Harper's Bazar, these Paris Spring openings are reported in great detail, and Harper's Bazar particularly calls attention to the use of bright colors for evening wear.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

New York, April 17.—Two contrasts: Easter business in the stores has been dull, Easter business in Wall Street has been booming.

This is more encouraging than if the conditions had been reversed, since Wall Street's activities always are interpreted as foreshadowing coming developments and trends.

The quietness in retail business appears to prevail all over the Eastern half of the continent. Just why consumers should be acting timidly is puzzling most people. Yet, is this caution not a natural sequence to the hard times during the last eighteen months, with its accompanying unemployment, wage reductions, price cuts, and general uncertainty?

* * *

But are not influences and developments at work to modify this attitude?

Let us see.

* * *

Three basic economic factors are: Agriculture, employment, money.

The status of our forty million agricultural population has been substantially improved by the recovery of 40 per cent. in wheat, in corn, in food animals, and in wool. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Pugsley assures me, on his return from extensive traveling in the Middle West and South, that farmers are now hopeful that the end of their post-war troubles is within sight. Many of them are already back on their feet.

* * *

Employment figures are very encouraging. In one month the International Harvester Company took on 1,500 additional men; some of the larger automobile companies have increased their forces still more; rubber companies have taken on considerable numbers of workers; copper properties have been re-engaging working forces to get operations under way; steel plants are working on a broader scale; equipment companies have very greatly enlarged their operations; the veritable boom in building is creating a keen demand for skilled tradesmen; some of the railroads have started improvement plans involving the employment of additional workers; the oil industry is busier; the lumber trade is on the up-grade.

In short, in hardly a single industry are forces being reduced, whereas in many, many directions very considerable additions are being made.

* * *

As for the monetary situation, it could not well be more conducive to the revival of enterprise.

The absorption of new security offerings continues to be amazing. Bank reserves remain altogether unnecessarily high. The government finds itself able to sell Treasury certificates at 3½ per cent., the lowest rate since pre-war days, and an extraordinary change as compared with even a year ago. Commercial borrowers can obtain funds at as low as 4½ per cent., which is also the rate quoted for collateral loans. That similar conditions exist overseas is shown by the reduction of the Bank of England rate to 4 per cent., a figure which may be matched shortly by the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

* * *

The pressure to find employment for funds is illustrated by the spectacular movements in the security markets.

Last week again brought new high quotation levels in both stocks and bonds. No fewer than seven Government bonds rose above 100. For thirteen consecutive days dealings on the Stock Exchange have been at the rate of more than one million shares every day, a record that has not been often paralleled. Investment bankers, as well as commission brokers, agree in reporting that public participation in the security markets has widened quite substantially, although in the stock end it has not yet reached boom proportions. While the sensational pace of recent weeks has elicited warnings against sudden reactions, the prevailing opinion is that the security markets have entered a long upward swing, predicated on the looked-for improvement in general business during the year.

* * *

Such matters as those here mentioned weigh far more heavily with most people than, for example, the daily discussions at Genoa, or new tariff schedules, or bonus backing-and-filling. The impressive improvement in the principal foreign exchanges during recent months is generally accepted as reflecting increasing confidence in the highest financial circles that some way will be found to steer Europe towards recovery. Our own notable expansion in exports last month has also stimulated cheerfulness and raised hopes that the many millions of capital being raised here for foreign countries will enable them to buy our products much more freely.

* * *

Perhaps a word of caution ought to be uttered against being carried away by the pyrotechnics in Wall Street. There is little likelihood that business will boom to any corresponding extent. Things are moving and should continue to move in the right direction. But the pace is likely to be moderate.

TRADING TOTAL CLOSE TO 2 MILLIONS

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular at the close of the New York market, today being first two-million share session of the year. The price movement was unsteady after the start. Realization selling was an offset to a low money rate. After reacting, the market rallied. Rails showed group strength in the afternoon. Oils ruled lower. Coppers and Tobaccos were up at the end. Steels failed to make much of a recovery.

Buying orders were of such volume over Sunday that the market opened as strong and active today as at the close last week and the upward movement continued until profit taking was on a scale as to check bullish enthusiasm. Morning transactions exceeded a million shares. The market was excited and the scene on the exchange is described as "pandemonium." But neither gains nor losses were large, only a few stocks having an early range beyond two points.

By noon the market was rather heavy and most leaders were either showing losses or had lost gains. Oils and coppers were leaders in the early advance. The former were foremost in the decline, particularly Doheny issues. Cheap money increased the demand for stocks. The opening rate was 4 per cent. Later the quotation was 3½ per cent. and by afternoon the rate was again 4 per cent. There was a rally under the leadership of rails during the midday period, with Studebaker prominent outside of this list. In the afternoon the price movement was narrow. The market was irregular in the last hour, with oils and motors ruling lower and steels steady.

Sinclair was the oil feature. Dealings in this issue was in big blocks. During the forenoon it ranged from 30⅜, off 2¼, to 34⅝, up 1⅜. It recovered part of its loss in the afternoon. Loew's Inc. was active and up more than two points at its highest. This corporation has reduced its bank loans to $850,000.

Foreign exchange rates advanced a little, French francs selling at a new high.

Flood of Buying Orders at Opening

By W. S. COUSINS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 17.—The extraordinary display of strength and activity in the stock market which characterized the close of last week was responsible for the flood of buying orders which greeted the market at the opening today, and under the influence of which, combined with the reduction in call loan rates to 3½ per cent., the market boomed forward again.

As on the last few days of last week, the oil stocks practically monopolized the attention of speculators in the first hour, and it was ten minutes after the opening before the committee was able to announce the official price on Sinclair Oil. The price was posted at 34 to 34½, one point higher than Saturday's close. This was the highest point it reached, however, for shortly before noon a raid was made on the stock, under the influence of which it was heavily sold, retreating abruptly for a four-point loss to 30⅜. When reports were received that the Teapot Dome deal with the government will be attacked, selling orders flowed in from all sides.

Other oil stocks which in the early trading exceeded their best 1922 records were Standard Oil of New Jersey at 184, Texas Company at 42⅝, Invincible at 20 and Mexican Pete at 135¼. Houston Oil was strong and active at 80.

The shipping stocks were again prominent for their strength and activity. Marine common made a new high at 21, while the preferred sold up to 84½. The copper stocks made the best showing of the year, Anaconda selling up to 54, for a new high; Kennecott at 32¾, also a new high, and American Smelting & Refining at 59¼. The railroad shares went into high ground in the first hour, but failed to maintain their advantage, selling off under profit-taking around the noon period.

New York City Bonds Advanced

By MUNROE ROBERTS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 17.—The effect of the offerings of $45,000,000 in new 4¼ per cent. bonds by the city of New York was seen in a rise of 2½ points in the city's 4½s of 1971 today. Important gains were also made by other of the New York city issues.

The market was uniformly strong and active throughout the session. Liberty bonds repeated last week's high records, the third and fourth 4¼s selling at par, while the Victory 4¾s sold up to 100.85.

Mexican government 5s made a new high at 70½, up one point, while the 4s sold up 1½ at 60¼. Railroad bonds continued a strong feature of the listed market. In the industrial division there were gains, while foreign bonds advanced under heavy demand from investors.

Urgent Buying of Many Curb Stocks

By Associated Press.

New York, April 17.—There was urgent buying of many groups of stocks on the New York Curb this morning. A large number of issues reached new highs. The strength, however, was not maintained in the list generally, realizing coming into the market on a large scale and it was not long before gains in numerous stocks were turned into losses.

After these recessions the market strengthened and advanced. There were upward movements in many industrials, a feature being the advance in Gillette Safety Razor to the new high of 223.

Over 40,000 shares of Radio common were traded in, that stock rising to 4.

EUROPE'S MAD FINANCE DUE TO NECESSITY

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, April 17.—It is not insanity but necessity that has caused the present chaos in Europe, though any person well grounded in financial affairs might well consider Europe a crazy house.

The interesting announcement of this week is that of the financial panic in Athens. Anybody knowing what the Greek government has been doing need not be surprised at such a situation. The report that the government is making a forced loan of 1,600,000,000 drachmas by calling in half the currency and issuing against that half bonds running twenty years and paying 6½ per cent. interest is quite enough to account for it.

Fancy the currency of any country thus dealt with and then ask if panic would be avoided. It appears that this was done suddenly, too, and the veriest tyro understands that financial operations should be conducted gradually and carefully and not take the form of an explosion.

The operation is thorough enough certainly. The government bites into the currency plug, and generously to itself takes half of it.

There was a time when the nations of Europe were looking somewhat contemptuously on the United States for certain financial vagaries among its people, such as the greenback craze and the 16 to 1 silver theory. Nothing comparable with the performances of Europe has ever been seen in this country.

Nothing is too unsound in finance to be adopted there. One is tempted to say to those responsible for those things "go to school," but we must remember the extraordinary conditions back of these financial performances—huge indebtedness, poverty, exhaustion.

It has been publicly stated that this action of the Greek government is the first of its kind ever taken. That is not correct, according to John F. Bass of this city. A similar measure was adopted some time ago in Czecho-Slovakia, the change being expressed in a loan running fifty years and enabling the government to carry on a few months longer. Also Hungary has done something of the same sort. Each step of this kind appears to leave the government in a worse condition.

EUROPE MUST BE REBUILT SLOWLY

By FRANK A. VANDERLIP

(Copyright, 1922, Special Cable to Boston American)

Genoa, April 17.—If anyone expected there would come out of this conference quickly a formula for the economic reconstruction of Europe, they will be disappointed. There is no great promise of anything of that sort.

From another point of view the conference is already a success—its real achievement has been to bring together the highest political representatives of thirty-four nations and hold them together for a week in a fairly amiable state of mind.

Genoa is now the political center of gravity of the world. In a week I met a great many distinguished statesmen whom it took me three months of time and travel to meet last year. They are accompanied by the best economic and financial experts, great bankers and captains of industry.

MUCH INDICATES DECAY.

I was profoundly impressed by the present view of these men as to the growing seriousness of the European situation. In conversation most of them leave me with the clear impression that there has been deterioration in the general European situation in the last six months.

Something has occurred to indicate improvement, but much to indicate decay. The need of the conference is beyond question.

Amicable gathering of statesmen, economists and financiers offers opportunity to expose the problems and difficulties met with in the various countries in a way that has not been possible heretofore.

Never has a breakdown appeared to me so certain as it does now when I quickly get innumerable viewpoints, coming from many representatives of many peoples in so short a time. Whoever thinks any single conference can evolve a formula to cure Europe's ills, little understands those ills—one might as well seek a prescription to cure a man who has lost a leg—cure is impossible but perhaps a wooden leg can be made, possibly a pretty effective one.

MUST MOVE SLOWLY.

Premier Lloyd George has said Europe will be "swept with despair" if the conference does not evolve plans for the successful economic reconstruction of Europe. If the people of Europe anticipate such a favorable result, they are bound to be disappointed. If they are more reasonable in their expectations, the conference promises to be beneficial.

At the opening of the conference there were said to be 1,100 journalists here. They wanted flash news to indicate a definite effective plan for setting Europe right. They were disappointed at the meagreness of news. Europe is beginning an historical epoch; one might as well expect to flash telegraphic bulletins on the progress of a geologic age. There will be many conferences, many disappointments before Europe's economic reconstruction is accomplished.

The mere machinery of organizing such a conference requires time and patience. The representatives of these thirty-four nations, unaccustomed to working together, cannot be rounded into a compact parliamentary machine instantly.

RUSSIA OCCUPIES STAGE.

Substantial progress has been made in the necessary preliminaries. This week is likely to produce something more interesting than the political jockeying.

Russia has taken the centre of the stage during the opening days. Mr. Lloyd George put the greatest emphasis upon the pressing need of reestablishing economic relations with Russia. And the London experts put the Russian provisions first on the program. These provisions occupy more than three-quarters of the document.

The Bolshevik representatives were picturesque figures at the opening session. They occupy the stage.

Notwithstanding the prominence Russia receives here thus far, Russia is not the centre of European problems. I do not minimize the importance of the re-establishment of normal economic conditions in Russia by re-opening trade relations, but even if the Allies—France and England particularly—found a solution of the Russian problem, the European crisis would still not be eased.

A MATTER OF YEARS.

Economic rehabilitation of Russia is a matter of years. Her foreign trade was never more than 3 per cent. of the world's trade.

I have talked with the Bolshevik delegates. The picture they draw—and they are hardly painting it blacker than it is—leaves no doubt in my mind that Russia cannot be brought back fully to the economic map of Europe for a decade, and probably not for a much longer time.

The first effect of opening Russia would be merely the creation of a place to sell goods on credit. Little can come out of Russia that will prove economically important until the wreck is materially repaired. This will take years.

The imperative, menacing problem lies not in Russia—it lies in Germany.

CHEAP COPPERS SELL LOWER IN BOSTON

The majority of stocks were up on the Boston exchange at noon, the local market showing moderate strength during the morning. The weak section was low-priced coppers. Some of them eased off under profit taking. Trading was very active, but the business was largely in the group mentioned. The price range for the market as a whole was narrow.

Osceola and Waltham Watch preferred each advanced a point. Among losses were New England Oil 1⅛ and Calumet & Hecla 2. The last named issue was down 3 at 275 at the opening.

Among low-priced coppers Arcadian was off ⅛ at 3⅜; Lake ⅛ at 4⅞, Ojibway ⅝ at 3⅜, Franklin ⅛ at 2⅝, Keweenaw at 3 and Winona ¼ at 1⅞.

In the afternoon the tone was heavy, there being more stocks off than up. On the adverse Supreme Court decision United Shoe sold off 2⅝ to 40½. Then it rallied a point. It was not active. Mexican Investment and Eastern Steamship declined two points. Boston & Maine advanced 1⅞ and American Woolen 1⅞.

The curb market was unusually active and had more breadth than for a long time. The price movement was irregular, with leaders inclined to sag in most instances. Among losses at noon were Bagdad 2 cents, at 22 cents, Verde Mines 1 cent at 32 cents, Consolidated Coppermines ⅛ at 2⅜, Jerome-Verde Development ⅛ at 4⅛, Gadsden ⅛ at 1⅛, and Crystal 1-16 at 1 11-16. Gains included Eureka 1 cent at 26 cents, Mutual 3 cents at 29 cents, Alpha 3 cents at 40 cents, Shea Copper 1 cent at 59 cents, Boston & Wyoming 1 cent at 70 cents, and United Verde Extension ⅛ at 28½. Boston Ely had recovered a cent loss.

CURTAIN RISES TONIGHT ON FILENE SHOW

"Sixes and Sevens" Will Be Given All This Week at Colonial Theatre

When the curtain rises at the Colonial Theatre this evening there will be displayed the fruits of many weeks of intensive rehearsing on the part of certain members of the Filene Co-operative Association in preparation for this season's production of their new musical comedy, "Sixes and Sevens."

There will be eight performances during the week, including the holiday matinee Wednesday, and the regular matinee Saturday.

The production is expected to exceed in excellence and thoroughness their offering of last year, which was so highly acclaimed.

BOOK BY O'HARA.

The book was written by Neal O'Hara, the music by R. L. Harlow and the lyrics by L. S. Bitner. The dancers were trained by Miss Amelia Burnham, who also directed the dance numbers.

Among the principals are Thomas M. B. Hicks, Jr., F. William Stuart, Jr., Leah Ainsworth, Harold Brightman, Marguerite Murray, Ackley R. Slee, John J. Cuthbert, Helen Bingham and Carl Schindler.

Among the chorus are "The Dancing Four"—Misses Theresa Gorman, Mary Mulligan, Amalie Rauschal, Marjorie Southack. Ponies: Misses Anna Brennan, Mildred Brennan, Gladys Elliot, Marguerite Gallivan, Evelyn Goldberg, Delia Goldman, Grace Lynch, Agnes Mahoney, Ella Mutz, Agnes Podolske.

LARGE CHORUS.

The chorus: Misses Evelyn Bergeron, Helen Burke, Jessie Chester, Alice Connolly, Ethel Crossley, Charlotte Daly, Grace Donigan, Roberta Ely, Margaret Etheridge, Catherine Feeley, Hazel Freedman, Agnes Gaddis, Margaret Garland, Sally Goldstein, Mildred Goverdinsky, Hildreth Hanson, Grace Heffernan, Eva Johnson, Helen Kelly, Mary Philbrick, Marjorie Raleigh, Lou Seeton, Augusta Silvery and Florence Zoehler.

Messrs. John Alden, George Black, John Black, Albert Bradley, Herbert Bryant, John Galvin, Albert Gill, Frederick Griffin, Owen Lawson, Harold McCormack, Andrew Murphy, Joseph Selig, Chester Slater and Fred Westcott.

Since April 1st the deposit of the 4% Debentures under the plan for extension for a period of three years as approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, has steadily continued. A large majority of the Debentures have already been deposited and all the large holders have been communicated with. There still remain, however, a considerable number of holders, both in this country and abroad, with whom it has as yet been impossible to get in touch. The directors have therefore authorized a further extension of the period in which the Debentures may be deposited, such extended period to be subject to termination by the directors without notice.

The directors desire to emphasize the fact that the plan can become effective only if it is accepted by the Debenture holders with practical unanimity, as it has been impossible to make provision for the payment of any Debentures the holders of which do not accept the company's offer of extension.

The Dollar Debentures may be deposited with the Bankers Trust Co., N. Y., Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, or Drexel & Co., Philadelphia. The Franc Debentures may be deposited with the Equitable Trust Co., New York, Paris or London; American Trust Co., Boston; or Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co., Providence.

"For Better Homes"

Those Three Words Represent the Best That the World Has Known of Progress

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The "Home Beautiful" Exhibition is open this week and will continue through next week at Mechanics Building. It is an educational campaign "For Better Homes."

Those interested seek to revive realization of the fact that THE HOME is the human unit.

First, the tribe, then the association of tribes, and today the greatest nation or empire is merely AN EXPANSION OF THE HOME IDEA.

GOVERNMENT began in the home, with the father, the strongest member, at the head; the mother, usually the wisest member, as adviser and restrainer; the others as members of the family.

Government on a big scale simply represents expansion of government on the family scale.

---

If the Northern races have ruled on the earth, conquering the South, it is because Northern climate, severe Winter, has not merely encouraged, but FORCED united family life. The families were kept together, mother, father and children, through long Winters, in intense family interest and in strength.

What a man IS, shows in what he does FOR his family, just as a government is tested by what it does for its people.

No man has a right to criticize outside conditions, if within his means he has failed to make conditions as good as they can be made in his OWN HOME.

---

Many things go into the making of a real home, first of all the SPIRITUAL ELEMENT, the atmosphere that goes out from the father and mother, the unconscious teaching, the moral and mental influence that give strength, resolution and character to children, all through their lives.

Besides the spiritual side of family life, and necessary to that side, is the material life and surroundings, that extend from the front door to the top floor, down again, and out to the back door.

Comfort, without foolish ostentation, the atmosphere, affectionate, sincere, loyal, and artistic, that make the home always thought of and forever remembered, must depend to some extent upon material surroundings.

---

A well-equipped and furnished library, a well-equipped kitchen, where work can be done comfortably, in the "factory of creature comforts," so dear to children, are alike important.

The playroom for the children, where if something is broken it doesn't matter; the drawing-room for the father and mother, and the older children, where girls and boys meet their friends and make them welcome, finding society and happiness INSIDE THE HOME—all these are essential features of "Better Homes."

---

There is unfortunately growing up in America a poor substitute for a home, a decided weakening of home standards and home ties.

It is not a good thing for the nation.

The men that are doing the best work for this and other countries today are those whose last thought on earth will [illegible] them back to the home of childhood, its memories, affections, inspirations and joys that stand out at the hour of death as clearly as though it had all been of yesterday.

---

Man's character and self-respect begin WITHIN HIMSELF.

Character, self-respect, and worth of the family BEGIN WITHIN THE HOME.

All effort, all reasonable expenditure, all devotion and loyalty should be concentrated on making that HOME worthy of every good instinct, every ambition, every justifiable form of family pride.

To make your children worthy of their home, make them proud of it.

Nothing that your means can afford is ill spent, if it increases the beauty or comfort of that centre in which family life develops.

The man that would supply modern tools to his workers, and demands them for himself, often grudges to his family the new things that are needed to replace the old, or to keep pace with changing conditions and times.

A man is judged by THE INSIDE OF HIS HEAD and the inside of his home.

Keep Weapons From Thugs

State Should Regulate Sale and Buy Up Those Received by Pawnbrokers

Along with the Governor's appeal for greater severity on the part of the courts against those who are found guilty of violent crimes, there ought to be some method of preventing these violently disposed people from getting the weapons which they customarily use in committing these crimes.

It is altogether too easy to buy revolvers and automatic pistols. These weapons also appeal to the melodramatic instincts of young men. If their sale were regulated and the State should arrange to buy from the pawnbrokers all the pistols which are pawned, or should set up a purchasing headquarters to buy these weapons, in less than a year they would be pretty much out of the hands of dangerous people, for these thugs and wild men are an impecunious, heedless lot, always bankrupt, and half the time desperate for a few cents to get the next meal. The first thing they pawn is the revolver or pistol.

Forgetting Home Rule

Several years ago the Legislature passed a law which allowed the cities and towns to decide for themselves whether or not they would have the two-platoon system for firemen. This year, some people, forgetting the principles of home rule and democracy, have filed a bill which, if enacted, would take away from the cities and towns the privilege of deciding for themselves what kind of a fire protection they shall have.

This bill is characteristic of the reaction which followed the war and which is rapidly passing. The bill will probably be defeated.

Somebody's Birthday

Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

IF born today you ought to be felicitated upon the great gift of intellectual curiosity with which your fates have endowed you. There is nothing too great nor too small for the ingenuity of your mind and nothing it cannot adjust. You are the student par excellence.

Emotionally you are an exceptionally reciprocal person. You love as you are loved, no more or no less, and you are kind, generous and affectionate to those whom you love, but never twice to an unresponsive person. In the game of hearts you expect a certain give-and-take which you will not often find.

Today shows a good omen for travel or any change of residence, but it will be wiser to hesitate until tomorrow for any business transaction.

Your ensuing year will bring you anxiety in business, and any new enterprise should be well considered before being acted upon. It is a year of waiting for you.

A child born today will be artistic and romantic and very attractive physically.

Famous persons born today:

Mahlon Dickerson — Secretary of the Navy.

Susan Fenimore Cooper — Author.

John Pierpont Morgan — Financier.

Charles H. Parkhurst—Clergyman and reformer.

Edward Bellamy—Author of "Looking Backward."

Seen and Heard

By Lambert and Dailey

PRESIDENT DAVID J. BRICKLEY of the City Council is acting Mayor of the city during Mayor Curley's absence from the "old town" on a short vacation, the first one that "hizzoner" has taken since he took office. "Dave," as he is commonly called by his friends in and about the "hall," carries weight and dignity to the high office which he is temporarily filling. It is not his first attempt. Once before he was in the limelight when the Mayor was in Washington battling for a correction in the differential rates for the port of Boston.

---

SIGN OF SPRING—Superintendent of Public Buildings Fred J. Kneeland has begun to remove the storm windows from City Hall.

---

It is no easy task for a public executive to see and listen to more than 100 persons a day and to take care of the city business in between—that is just, however, what Mayor Curley has been doing every day since he took office. He has had to call a rest. Ninety per cent. of the so-called "visitors" are office-seekers.

---

Life for GOVERNOR COX is just one proclamation after another. Five in the last few days, beginning with "Be Kind to Animals Week," and ending with General Grant's 100th anniversary. When GENERAL BUTLER was Governor, and on the outs with certain churchmen, many of the clergymen attacked his Thanksgiving Day proclamation, quoting liberally from it to show it contained the thoughts of an unreligious man. Butler let their attacks go unanswered a few days and then explained that as he had been too busy to prepare a proclamation, he had had his secretary copy the proclamation of one of the early Governors, whom he named. The early Governor happened to be an active and conspicuous churchman.

---

The flowing, graceful style of GOVERNOR McCALL was probably never excelled. On a hot day, he would close his office to all intruders, throw his coat across the back of the chair and, in shirtsleeves, with ink, paper and an old-fashioned pen, would write for hours without interruption. Mrs. McCall prizes most his inaugural declaration in favor of old-age pensions.

EX-GOVERNOR McCALL and MRS. McCALL are now touring Europe. His return will be charged with interest, as the former Governor may decide to be a candidate against Senator Lodge.

BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE

By S. S. Carvalho

ARTICLE VII.

Bids of Two or More

THERE are Initial Bids of two, three or more in all the classes named except Minor suit declarations, where there should be no such thing as an initial bid of two or three, as they are invitations to play the hand through, with no certainty of making the eleven tricks necessary for game.

All Free bids over two are preemptive and should indicate that the Declarer expects to go game. If the Minor suit has game strength tell the partner so by bidding four or five.

The foundation of the whole bidding and play depends upon the Initial bids, and there is no greater mistake that a player can make than by deviating from the conventions governing them. Never forget that they are regulated by arbitrary rules which state the number of tricks the Bidder can make and what he has for support and defence. It is only when there are equally sound bids in two suits that the matter of judgment enters. The Initial Bidder should always have two quick tricks on which his partner can depend. If he has a good hand without them pass and wait for the second round.

The Initial One Major suit declaration is the best average free bid, although the No Trump requires one trick less for a game score. There is always, however, a risk in a No Trump that equalizes the disadvantage of having to make the additional Trump trick.

The Major suit bid should have both length and strength, and conform to the accepted convention. That is, an Initial Major Suit Bid of one must have four tricks for attack or two for defence or assistance. It says to the Partner: "I can make four tricks with any suit as Trump. If you shift or double you may count on me for two quick tricks."

Letter to the Editor

Pay Roll Holdups

Editor Boston American:

When a bank messenger or employe with pay roll is held up at the point of a gun and robbed, we read generally that the special officers or guards "accompanying the messenger were surprised," or "were confronted so quickly that none had opportunity to draw his gun." We read further: "A throng of pedestrians viewed the holdup, but were held off by the bandits with pistol flourishes."

Why do the guards persist in "accompanying" the messenger? The guard is no less mortal or human than the messenger. The point is for the business man not to put all his eggs in one basket—but to put all his yeggs. The guard or special officer, with gun ready, should remain always fifteen to thirty feet BEHIND THE MESSENGER. Then he becomes just one of that "throng of pedestrians" we read about, only he becomes one among them who is able to do something. From his unhampered point of vantage at a distance he has time to draw his gun, take in the whole situation and then, when the thieves are about to leap into their car, start a little target practice on his own account, with the bandit's chauffeur as a starter.

There's only one way to beat these gunmen, and that is to excel them at their own game.

GERALD COURTNEY.

JUDGING BY THE NOISE HE MAKES

It often seems as if the average man would rather win fifty cents on a bet than earn five dollars honestly.

NEEDLESS TROUBLE

Why do ladies go to Palm Beach when they can exhibit their legs without going to the trouble of putting on bathing suits and sprawling upon sand?

NO REASON TO BE ASHAMED

For most of us it is easy enough to say that we are proud to be Americans. Most of us never get a chance to explain our nationality in Paris.

Hope on; hope bravely; don't despair;
Despite the evils there is good;
I haven't any doubt that there
Is virtue still at Hollywood.

TRUE LOVE CAUSES A REAL INSIGHT

"STUDY MEN."

That's what Miss Elsie Hill, chairman of the National Women's Party, says to American college girls.

Miss Hill declares that 30 per cent. of the college girls marry within two years after graduation, but they are for the most part sadly lacking in the knowledge of how to make a success of marriage.

So she advocates what she calls a "red-blooded" course in domestic relations, and she wants that course made a required part of a college education.

Well, well—here's a new idea! "Study men"—good gracious, Miss Hill, however are the girls going to study men? Out of a textbook?

Who's going to write the book—and where, oh where, are you going to find a teacher who will know exactly how to conduct such a class?

If she has studied men to advantage—how will she come to be a teacher in a girls' college, or in a co-educational college, either, for that matter?

Who Will Teach?

"Study men"—what men—how study them?

Are they all alike—these men Miss Hill finds so hard to understand—and so interesting?

There's little Jimmie Jones, for instance. He likes flappers—pretty girls with bobbed hair and jingling straps to their overshoes.

He hates clever girls or "digs," as he calls them. He wants dimpled little things with roguish eyes, and a way with them.

Now, how are you going to please Jimmie, no matter how hard you study him—if you happen to be tall and bony, and never even saw a dimple, much less possessed one?

There's Billy Smith—he likes brains—ability, brilliancy. He's bored to death with the "Oh, you're so big and strong—how wonderful you are!" little flapper.

He wants to talk about race preservation and the everlasting whichness of the what, and he wants to talk about these things to a person who can at least pretend to understand them. How can poor little Susan Sweetair ever please Billy, no matter how hard she studies?

Have you never, my dear Miss Hill, heard a man say how much he admired a nice, little domestic woman, who loves home and babies and—then see him leave just exactly such a woman to make violent love to a young person who'd rather die than to stay out of the bright lights for two consecutive evenings.

Have you never heard three or four men telling each other how they abhor the modern flapper and how they wish somebody would bring back the old-fashioned girl they read about in books?

And then when somebody brings the old-fashioned girl to town from some place in the country, and she's pretty and sweet, too, and as good as gold—these same men will let her sit against the wall the whole evening—and never even look once in her direction while they flutter like moths around any candle any feather-headed little flapper chooses to light.

"Study men"—what methods are you going to use to entrap these wary creatures?

Is the "vamp" to be the model?

Pish—tush—Miss Hill, any man of experience will tell you that the "vamp" is all right on the stage—or for an evening's amusement, but when it comes to marriage—out upon her!

The home-and-mother type—look around, Miss Hill, and behold her sitting at home and being an excellent mother—most of the time, alone, with her children.

Men Don't Study

Men don't have to study women to get women to marry them and I never yet saw a woman who was without any particular drawback, who couldn't marry at least half a dozen times, if she wanted to do it.

And whisper—are you so sure that these girls you want to teach are all so very anxious to make a "success of marriage"?

Some of them don't seem to want marriage at all—they find it a bore, apparently, and others appear to look upon marriage as merely a background for all kinds of more of less pleasant activities.

No, no, Miss Hill—it isn't the head that must be educated in this connection

It is the heart and the character.

UNCLE SAM 'UNCLE' TO ALL THE WORLD

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

NOW comes Liberia and wants to borrow $5,000,000 from the United States.

You don't know who Liberia is? She is not a who, but a what. She is a free, black republic on the west coast of Africa.

And, incidentally, because she has developed largely under the fostering care of the United States, Liberia has more claim upon our material helpfulness than most of the European nations that are now so deeply indebted to us financially.

But it is about time that the peoples of the earth ceased regarding America as the common treasury of the world and considering Uncle Sam (who seems to be everybody's potential "uncle") as the keeper of a universal loan shop, from which they can all borrow, but to which no one needs pay or even pledge anything.

Rich and Generous

Perhaps the pride of some Americans is stirred because we have the privilege these days of playing the part of the world's "foolish uncle."

Uncle Sam is very rich—and very generous.

But there distinctly is a limit to international philanthropy.

That is to say, the United States is under no obligations, legal or moral, to "lend" to other nationals varying millions or billions upon other than a purely business basis.

What lending we have done in the emergency of war should be honestly liquidated as the conditions of peace may permit.

Every such loan ought to be "secured" with sufficient collateral, precisely as in similar private transactions.

John Bull's debts to our Uncle Sam should be as concretely secured as John Bull himself would fortify a debt to him by John Chinaman.

It is an insult to our national intelligence, and it reflects discreditably upon the integrity of the debtor nations even to suggest that the huge indebtedness of the Europeans to us be wiped off the slate and forgotten.

Our Brother's Keeper

Just why? Are we our brother's keeper, or the guardian of the behavior of our sister nations, to such an extent that, if the European peoples choose to murder one another, in mutual hatred or in militant competition for world trade, we must pay the price of their murderous sprees?

It is ridiculous to say that the eleven billions which the variously impotent European powers owe us are really our own war obligation.

However belatedly we entered that mutually murderous campaign, we certainly paid our part of the price in money and in men.

Even a bonus will be no adequate recompense to the latter. That belated bonus will add a burden of other billions to the colossal total of billions which the war had already cost us, but one which we shall more gladly bear than any other part of our national debt.

These billions are not taken out of an infinite inexhaustible treasure trove called the United States Treasury, but they must come out of US, the people of the United States.

We have sufficient burdens of our own to carry, as the result of their uncouth frenzy and the contagion of their madness, without assuming the vicarious carrying of the sins of Europe.

Bonus to Pay

It is enough if we make some amends to our own dead and living soldiers and if we pay our own billions of indebtedness, without undertaking to put a premium upon the persistent militarism of Europe, as we do, if we forgive their debts at the same time that they spend new billions upon armaments.

Incidentally, it should be recalled that one reason for the denial of an intercourse to Russia was her supposed refusal to assume the war debts, external and internal, of the Czarist regime.

Is the false face of repudiation any fairer when worn by Britain or France than when it masks revolutionary Russia?

Think it all over, just and intelligent reader. And do not allow your Uncle Sam to be more foolish than you yourself would be.

As for Liberia and all other little sister nations, modest in their weakness and their wants, we would be happy to have them hail Columbia for help.

Susan's Secret

Susan had been put out to service, and her mistress liked the rosy face of the young girl. One day Susan was sent on an errand to town. She was longer than usual, and her mistress stood in the porch as she came through the field. Susan was happy, and her mistress said: "Why, Susan, what a rosy, happy face you have today! You look as if the dew had kissed you." Susan dropped her eyelids, and murmured, "Indeed, ma'am, but that wasn't his name!"
